Davey Puts Relief Up to Cities In Talk Here

URGES THEM TO AGREE ON SET-UP FIRST

Governor Says He Can't Fix Date for Legislature Until Cities Draft Program.

1,000 AT 9-COUNTY RALLY

Reviews Accomplishments In Plea for 3rd Term; Lauds Glattke and Kallmerten.

Ohio's relief problem was dumped into the laps of the cities which have done the most complaining about it by Gov. Martin L. Davey last night at Mansfield Senior high school in his first campaign speech since announcing he is a candidate for a third term.

The governor addressed about 1,000 Democrats from a nine-county area at a rally sponsored by the Richland county Democratic executive committee. There were few outbursts of applause and no demonstrations.

Speaks for Hour.

In an hour's talk, Davey called on the cities to agree on a relief program and present it to him before he will call a special session of the legislature to take up relief.

"It is impossible to fix the exact date for another special session of the legislature," he said, "and it cannot be done until city officials have completed some program."

Asserting that Ohio has never failed to meet the relief problem, Gov. Davey said municipalities are now clamoring for the same program of matching funds for relief which he advocated more than a year ago which the cities condemned.

Says They Want Plan Now.

"The cities cried out against the

This picture wasn't taken in Mansfield, but it might just as well have been, because Gov. Martin L. Davey, center, was in the midst of just such a crowd of admirers following his talk here last night at the Senior high school. His speech here was the second of his campaign for a third term.

ROOSEVELT TO PROPOSE NEW PUMP-PRIMING

$1,500,000,000 Program of Loans to Cities, States Under Consideration.

PRESIDENT CALLS AIDS

White House Meeting Today Designed to Study Means of Curbing Recession.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is about to propose a $1,500,000,000 pump-priming program to congress in the form of non-interest bearing loans to cities, states and political sub-divisions, it was learned authoritatively today.

WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins and his chief deputy, Aubrey Williams, were called into a White House conference this morning to discuss final phases of the plan to restore public purchasing power.

Involves Bond Issue.

The plan Mr. Roosevelt has in mind involves flotation of a $1,500,000,000 bond issue by the federal government. This money would be reloaned to the cities, states and counties without interest and repayable in 50 years at the rate of 2 per cent annually.

It is the president's thought that both WPA and PWA projects already plotted could be revived immediately under this new approach to economic recovery.

Mr. Roosevelt has outlined his relief ideas to recent callers, among them Governor George H. Earle (D.), Pennsylvania, who lunched yesterday at the White House.

The governor warned from the White House steps that unless federal pump priming was continued the very foundations of the government were threatened, but that with it a business recovery of magnitude would result.

Special Message Expected.

At the White House, no official comment was forthcoming on the president's plans with respect to industrial stimulation. It was obvious, however, that Roosevelt aids were sitting tight in the face of a definite "leak" on the subject.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected to send a special message to congress on the subject shortly. Whether it will be forthcoming before the house appropriations subcommittee on relief expenditures starts hearings about April 15 was not known.

Is This Any Way For Spring to Behave?

The redbirds trill a song of spring one day—and look what happens the next! Looking at the picture above it doesn't seem possible that little more than a week ago girls were wearing sleeveless dresses on the street and the lilac bushes were in bud. One of the worst snow and ice storms in April history swept over Ohio and the midwest yesterday and today leaving parked cars blanketed in heavy snow, while traffic in cities was snarled, rural regions battled drifts on the highways and ice broke telephone and telegraph wires. The scene above, taken on a Cleveland street yesterday, was typical of cities and towns of the middle west.

PHONE, POWER LINES FALL IN APRIL STORM

Streets and Highways Littered With Broken Trees; Damage Runs Into Thousands.

MORE RAIN OR SNOW DUE

2,000 Phones Out In County; Crestline Dark; Bucyrus, Marion Hardest Hit.

The entire Mansfield area bore an armor of ice today as one of the worst April storms in history struck the northern half of the state, crippling communication lines and littering streets and highways with tree branches broken by weight of the ice.

There was little hope for relief from the ice and snow within the next 24 hours, as the state weather bureau predicted more rain or snow tonight and Friday.

Work Throughout Night.

Linemen of the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the Ohio Bell Telephone company worked throughout the night restoring telephone service to a number of north central Ohio communities after the ice storm broke poles and snapped wires.

Telephone service was out last night between Mansfield, and Galion, Shelby, Bucyrus, Marion, Mt. Vernon, Bellville and Newark. Damage was estimated at from $5,000 to $10,000.

About 2,000 phones were out in Richland county, some of which will not be back in service for several days, according to C. L. Lisle, maintenance superintendent for the Mansfield Telephone company. Loss was estimated at $10,000.

Worst In 3 Years.

Describing the ice storm as "the worst since 1930," Lisle said 50 poles were broken off in the county and 250 telephones in the Butler area were out of service today due to a power line failure between Bellville and Butler.

Service at Butler probably will be restored by tonight, while workmen were giving preference to homes where there is sickness in their repair campaign.

R. D. Iden, distribution superintendent of the Ohio Public Service company, said only scattered points in the Mansfield district were without power today, as linemen worked all night repairing wires and removing tree branches from lines.

The ice began forming in the

Lorain 'Dark Horse' Named By Dems to 'Stop' Hurley

Councilman Endorsed for State Senator by Executive Committee Chairmen From 4 Counties In District.

Maurice Brown, a "dark horse" from Lorain, will be the standard bearer of the regular Democratic organization in the 27th-29th Ohio district in its effort to "stop" Senator William F. Hurley, also of Lorain.

That was the decision reached here yesterday afternoon at a conference of county executive committee chairmen from the four counties in the district—Richland, Ashland, Lorain and Medina.

Brown, a newcomer in district political affairs, is at present a councilman in Lorain, and the manager of a theater there.

Willing to Run.

He has not yet made formal announcement of his candidacy, but the committee heads said they were assured that he was willing to run.

None of the four chairmen—E. B. Kallmerten of Mansfield, Ben F. Harris of Lorain county, Floyd Felton of Medina county and Harold Welsh of Ashland county, would comment on Hurley's bitter blast at them yesterday, following the announcement that the party organization in the counties of the districts was going to swing its support away from him.

Hurley is serving his first term in the senate, and has been an active anti-Davey "hatchet man." He hurled bitter charges at the committee chairmen of the district yesterday, in announcing that he would be a candidate for re-election.

One of the chairmen, who declined to permit his name to be used, forecast that Hurley would be easily beaten. "He has no organization, and without such help should be easy to defeat," he said.

Spanish Loyalists Send New Aid Plea to France.

HENDAYE, FRANCO-SPANISH BORDER — (INS) — Loyalist Spain once more appealed to France for aid against advancing insurgent troops today as the rebel forces gravely endangered the electric power supply of Catalonia and Barcelona, seat of the Spanish government.

The new loyalist foreign minister, Juan Alvarez Del Vayo, voiced the new plea for help in a lengthy talk with the French ambassador to Barcelona, according to advices from the Spanish capital.

Meanwhile, spurred by the threat against the Catalan hydro-electric plant at Tremp, Barcelona authorities prepared to offer utmost resistance to the insurgent drive up the Segre river valley.

Pickpockets Have Field Day At Dem Rally At School

Some of the visiting Democratic leaders who were in Mansfield last night for the Gov. Martin L. Davey rally probably were a bit doubtful today about the city's brand of hospitality.

But if they were skeptical, they were too polite to mention that their pockets were picked at the Senior high school meeting, so police today were looking for the owners of four empty purses recovered last night in an alley off East Third street. Police were of the opinion there may have been other losses unreported.

Only one of the pickpocket victims, B. W. Garver of Ashland, reported his loss, but police had evidence that a lot of other visitors are moaning over the loss of their pocket change.

He hadn't told the police about it this morning, but C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of Richland county commissioners, confessed that he had lost his wallet containing $37 in cash, and his driver's license and some receipts.

"I had it yesterday afternoon," Mitchell said, "but it was missing after the rally.

Three of the looted purses were found early today by Patrolman Glenn Adams, and another was recovered in the same alley off East Third street near Diamond.

Cooking School Lecturer Has Big Following as Writer, Too

Miss Ruth Chambers, nationally known cooking school lecturer and writer on food subjects will meet personally next week the Mansfield women who read her first article on "Food Fashions" which appeared in The News-Journal last Monday.

She will conduct The News-Journal cooking school which will be held at the Ohio theater four days, starting next Tuesday. Her Food Fashion Revue is one of the most up-to-date of cookery events, and has been enthusiastically received by women wherever she has appeared. Her articles will appear each Monday in The News-Journal.

Miss Chambers is well known for her magazine and newspaper writings as well as for her series of cooking schools which she conducts in co-operation with leading newspapers over the country. She is also on the staff of the National Livestock and Meat Board, which will work with The News-Journal in bringing the Food Fashion Revue to Mansfield.

By training and experience the lecturer is well equipped to give advice on homemaking subjects, either to the novice or the established housewife.

A graduate of the Home Economics department of the University of Wisconsin, she began her professional career as a dietician in one of the large hospitals of Chicago. Later she became a member of the home service department of a large public utility company. This was followed by a demonstration and lecture tour for a leading manufacturer of ranges.

Particular attention will be given to meat dishes and meat cuts during the cooking school. The first session will be held at 9:15 a. m. Tuesday.

DESTROYS HOME

Fire Levels 10-Room Dwelling Near Pavonia.

Fire of an undetermined origin early today leveled the home of Dan Markel, half-mile east of Pavonia, in Weller township.

Before firemen summoned from Ashland had arrived, the 10-room house had burned to the ground. Markel, however, with the aid of neighbors, was able to carry all his household goods to safety.

The blaze was discovered at 7:30 a. m. by neighbors who saw the smoke rolling from the roof of the house. The Mansfield fire department was summoned but referred the call to the Ashland department which serves Weller township. Firemen were able to save several out buildings that were threatened for a time by flying sparks.

No estimate of the damage could be obtained at noon, while firemen were still pouring water, obtained from a nearby stream, on the ruins.

BLAST INJURES 5 IN CLEVELAND

Workmen Hurt as Leaking Gas Causes Explosion.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Fred Woodward, 31, today was reported by hospital attendants to be in "fair" condition with body burns suffered in an explosion which blasted the northern Ohio food terminal, injuring Woodward and four other persons.

Woodward was the most seriously injured. Treated at a hospital and released were Michael Arra, 17; Mrs. Eleanor Stenzil, 35; Julia Lewis and Frank Zengalli, 29. Several others escaped injury.

Gas leaking from a heater used to ripen fruit caused the blast.

OFFERS REWARD IN WPA SLAYING

County Ready to Pay $100 for Information Leading to Arrest, Conviction.

Richland county commissioners today offered $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Sherman Reed, 58, father of 10 children, who was found murdered eight days ago in his cabin on Seventh avenue.

The offer was announced by Sheriff E. P. Long who has conducted a fruitless investigation into the case since the body of the murdered WPA worker was found by a neighbor.

Long requested that information concerning the case be reported to him and promised that any "tips" furnished him will be held in strict confidence.

Reed, who lived alone in a three-room cottage opposite Liberty park, is believed to have been struck down by an assailant who attacked him from behind as he stood at a kitchen table. The victim was struck at least 11 times over the head with a weapon which has not been recovered.

The sheriff continued to question acquaintances of the murdered man today, but added that he had obtained no lead that pointed to any motive other than revenge.

He held little hope that a copy of a note which was sent to Federal Bureau of Investigation headquarters in Washington for examination, would provide a clue of any value.

The copy was partly re-traced by local officers from a scratch pad found in Reed's cabin and on which he is believed to have written a message to some one who apparently owed him a debt.

SMASH WINDOWS IN CINCY STRIKE

Food Workers' Union Head Denies Blame For Disorders.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Thirteen window-smashings were reported to police today as officials of the Kroger Grocery & Baking company, and the Candy and Food-Workers' union sought to settle a walkout of employes in the firm's bakeshop and candy department.

Joseph Kelly, business agent for the union, said "of course we get the blame for it, but we didn't do it." The organized workers, about 400 in number, are seeking a closed shop. Union spokesmen claimed about 95 per cent of the members had responded to the strike call.

FEAR VIOLENCE

Police Ready As Rival Unions Fight Over Picket Rights.

CROCKETT, Cal.—(U.P.)— Rival unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and the committee for Industrial organization disputed today over which one would picket the closed plant of the California-Hawaiian sugar refinery. Authorities feared another outbreak of violence.

Plumbers' Strike One Of Quietest In City's History

Mansfield was experiencing one of the quietest labor strikes in its history today and little or nothing was being done to reach a settlement.

Members of the local, 637, United Association of Plumbers, Steamfitters and Helpers of North America, who failed to report for work last Friday, declined to discuss the strike today. Officials of the Master Plumbers association could not be reached for a statement but it was learned that approximately 30 union plumbers were out after failing to negotiate a new wage contract with their employers.

Of the city's 33 plumbing shops, 13 were directly affected by the walkout, while the other 20 are one-man shops operated by the proprietors.

The union presented a demand to the Master Plumber's association Jan. 1, calling for a closed shop and a 25 per cent increase in wages, and had given the association until April 1 to agree to their terms.

The union is asking $1.25 an hour. The present scale is $1 an hour.

While a union negotiating committee declined to talk about the

HUNT STILL ON

Garner Runs Into More Snags In Search for TVA Probers.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Vice President Garner's pursuit of senate Republicans to serve on the Tennessee Valley authority inquiry committee continued unabated today.

For a moment yesterday it appeared he had solved the problem of filling the minority posts left vacant Tuesday when Senators McNary of Oregon and Borah of Idaho, the two original G. O. P. appointees, refused to serve. Following the recommendations of McNary, the senate minority leader, Garner named Senators Capper (R.) of Kansas and Frazier (R.) of North Dakota.

But Capper said today he probably would resign.

Senator Donahey of Ohio, at first undecided, said today that he will accept the appointment.

FOES SPLIT ON REORGANIZATION

Disagree Over Proposal to Kill Bill Before Debate on New Amendments.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The house refused today to kill the government reorganization bill. The teller vote was 191 to 169. The ballot, a victory for the administration, was on a motion by Representative O'Connor (D., N. Y.) to "strike out the enacting clause"—without which the bill would have been ineffective and meaningless.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — House opponents of the government reorganization bill disagreed today over a proposal to kill it outright before considering any amendments.

Chairman O'Connor (D., N. Y.) of the rules committee, one of the most outspoken foes, declared the country does not want the measure, and urged that it be disposed of at once.

The first business before the house shortly after noon was a vote on his motion to strike out the enacting clause, thereby making the bill inoperative.

But Chairman Sumners (D., Tex.) of the judiciary committee, an opponent of the bill in its pres-

Blum's Government Faced With New Crisis, Expected to Quit

(By International News Service)

PARIS — Premier Leon Blum's left-wing government faced a crucial test today as France labored under a series of strikes which have made 45,000 workers idle.

Opposition of a united bloc of opposition groups, it was predicted, would force the government headed by the Socialist premier to resign sometime today despite the action of the chamber of deputies in approving his demands for dictatorial financial powers.

Unless the government resigns, it was stated in political quarters, it will probably be defeated tomorrow when the Blum financial program comes up before the conservative senate, a legislative group ever adverse to granting sweeping financial powers to any government.

International News service learned Blum is planning to plead against a new ministerial crisis in the senate tomorrow.

He is expected to stress French fears of a possible German move against the sovereignty of Czechoslovakia following the forthcoming Austrian annexation plebiscite, and to tell the senate such an eventuality would be all the more likely if France were left without a government.

Meanwhile, taking stringent measures to prevent disorders, the interior ministry banned a mass meeting of protest against the Blum program which had been scheduled for tonight in front of the senate building.

Pointing to the narrow majority favoring Blum in the chamber vote—311 to 249—observers predicted radical Socialist members of the cabinet may quit their posts and thus force the entire government to resign. The radical Socialist party has taken a firm stand

SHERIFF SLAIN

Officer, Beverage Inspector Found Dead In Florida.

DE FUNIAK SPRINGS, Fla.—(INS)—Sheriff D. C. Atkinson, 41, and State Beverage Inspector Frank Hendricks were found shot to death early today, and a short time later James O'Neal, recently appointed as a constable, was taken into custody for questioning in connection with the case. No charge had been filed against O'Neal.

The double slaying was discovered when friends of Atkinson, worried over his failure to return from a visit to O'Neal's home, set out in search of him.

They found the bodies of Sheriff Atkinson and Inspector Hendricks lying in the roadway in front of the constable's home.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(INS)—Another ransom note, left on the porch of a Darien, Conn., clergyman's home kept the Levine kidnaping case alive today.

Murray Levine, father of the missing Peter, professed to know nothing about the finding of a new note but G-men reportedly were concentrated in Darien.

Meanwhile preparations went forward for countywide search for the missing boy to be staged Saturday, with 3,000 Boy Scouts and police of five communities participating.

2,800 Street Car Operators Strike, Cripple Detroit

EXTRA POLICE CALLED OUT TO STOP DISORDER

Motormen, Conductors Walk Out After Revolting Against Union Leaders.

(By United Press)

DETROIT — Street car operation in this city of 1,700,000 was paralyzed today by a strike of organized motormen and conductors.

Buses moved on regular schedule, driven by members of a rival union. A handful of platform men braved the strike order and took their cars from the barns but mass transportation in Detroit, the nation's fourth largest city, was virtually crippled.

Riotous Session.

Defiant members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes voted for the strike in a riotous union session last night in which they revolted against their leaders. The strike was a protest against delays in putting a new system-wide seniority plan into effect.

Twelve hundred extra police were rushed to eight car barns and switching centers and took up their posts at the zero hour—4 a. m.—when night crews brought their cars to the barns and day shifts refused to work.

The strike virtually paralyzed the city-owned system of 545 miles of street railway and threw approximately 2,800 conductors and operators out of work.

William S. Bullock, general superintendent of the department of street railways, said no violence between the opposing unions had been reported and that "so far" all bus lines were operating.

"But I don't know whether we'll have enough men to keep them going all day," he added.

'Keep Buses Running.'

Albert New, president of the Motor Coach Operators association, called on the 675 members of his independent union to "keep the buses running." He said they would maintain schedules night and day as long as the men could stay at the wheels of their machines.

The seniority dispute was brought to a head last Tuesday when the state supreme court granted another 10-day delay in its consideration of the union's petition to dissolve a circuit court injunction restraining the city from putting its seniority system into effect.

Thumbprint Chief Clue In Hunt For Texas Killer of 2

VAN HORN, Tex. — (U.P.) — A blurred thumbprint on the rear vision mirror of the automobile driven by Mrs. Weston G. Frome and her daughter before they were brutally murdered provided officers today with a clue which they believed might enable them to identify the slayer of the two California women.

Sheriff Chris P. Fox of El Paso, who has taken charge of the hunt for the murderer, said that the thumbprint was the only mark found on the car which might lead to the slayer.

The Packard automobile that Mrs. Frome and her daughter, Nancy, were driving on a transcontinental trip from their home at Berkeley to Parris Island, S. C., was found abandoned at Balmorhea, 50 miles east of Van Horn, last Sunday.

Fox revealed the latest clue after it had been announced that Jack Ferguson, Houston, Tex., iron worker, had been freed of suspicion in the Frome case. Officers at first believed that some clothing which Ferguson was attempting to sell on the streets of McCamey, Tex., might have been the property of the Frome women.

Up and Down THE STREET

Gov. Martin L. Davey probably doesn't know how close he came to getting rained on during his address in the high school auditorium last night. Just before the governor and his party left the First M. E. church, where they had dined, for the school, Democratic Chairman Ernie B. Kallmerten got word that there was a leak in the roof of the building, right over the spot on the stage where the governor would be standing to speak. Ernie sped into action, reached J. B. Moke, superintendent of school buildings, and got the leaky place patched in time to keep the gubernatorial person from getting dripped on during his one hour address.

Mrs. Leigh Rorick of Mansfield, who ranks with the most ardent of fishermen, made a catch the other day in Florida that gave her the biggest thrill of her visit. Standing on the shore, she hooked a 10-pound baby tarpon with rod and reel and feather bait, which if you know your tarpons and fishing, is no mean feat. Mrs. Rorick was with a party at Gordon's Pass, below Naples, Fla., when she made her unusual catch.

It sounds like a fairy story but it actually happened. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shumaker, 18 Helen avenue, had dinner last Sunday in Columbus. After arriving home, Mrs. Shumaker discovered she had lost a dinner ring of black onyx set with two diamonds. There seemed little hope of ever recovering it, but on a chance wrote to the restaurant asking if the ring had been found. Today Shumaker received a note saying the ring had been found by a waitress and was being sent under separate, insured cover. But the crowning touch was the management's expression of regret that the ring had been lost there and thanking them for their patronage.

Stalled on a desolated road, Auxter asked for volunteers to hoof it to a gas station. That left Auxter and one other. The latter finally agreed and he escaped injury on several occasions as he stumbled over the rough road in the dark.

BUCYRUS MALE CHORUS TO GIVE CONCERT IN MANSFIELD FRIDAY

The Bucyrus Male chorus of 30 voices will give a concert in Mansfield at 8 p. m. Friday at the First Presbyterian church.

This group of singers is made up of business and professional men in Bucyrus and is under the direction of Dr. A. D. Bumstead, formerly director of music at Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery, Kirksville, Mo., and a student director of the Ohio Wesleyan Glee club several years ago.

The chorus was organized in the fall of 1936 and has filled numerous engagements throughout central Ohio.

Featured with the group here will be a trumpet trio made up of three young men formerly members of the Bucyrus high school band. They are John Gebhardt, William Durr and Hillis Schieber.

The program will include "Morning" by Speaks, "The Shadow March" by Protheroe, "A Spirit Flower" by Campbell-Lipton and "Goin' Home" by Dvorak, sung by the chorus; "Bolero" by the trump trio; five negro spirituals, "Battle of Jericho," "This Little Light of Mine, "Go Down Moses," "King Jesus Is a Listenin' In" and "Look Away to Heaven," by the chorus.

C. L. Kantzer, bass singer with the chorus, will sing two solos, "Hear Me, Ye Wind and Waves" by Handl, and "To the Sun" by Curran. Other numbers by the chorus are "John Peel" by Andrews, "Song of the Marching Men" by Protheroe, "The Green Cathedral" by Hahn, "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky" by Kenny, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Kyrie at Sea" and "The Long Day Closes" by Sullivan.

The final number of the trumpet trio will be "Three Solatires" by Victor Herbert. Edwin Norton, one of Bucyrus' outstanding piano student, will accompany the chorus, and Mrs. C. E. Gebhardt will accompany the trio.

CHANGES LIGHTS

City Converts 2-Bulb Flashers at Subway Into 3 Signals.

Two-bulb flasher signals, installed at the intersection of state routes 42 and 30 at the Park avenue east subway last December, were being converted into 3-bulb signals today, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert announced.

Installation of the 3-bulb signals to conform with the city's traffic light system was ordered by Styert last month after he said he had received numerous complaints that motorists were driving through the intersection because they did not understand the flasher signals.

City Electrician Ernest Adams is adding another section to the present lights and with a few minor changes in the cables and control box, the work is expected to be completed within the next three days, Styert said.

He said the total cost of revamping the lights which cost $600, would be approximately $100.

TESTIMONY ON 'PROFITEERING' TO END TODAY

State Securities Head Ready to Submit Evidence to County Prosecutors.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Evidence obtained by the State Securities Division in its investigation of activities of two former officials of the division was about ready today for submission to the prosecuting attorneys of Franklin and Hamilton counties.

Dan T. Moore, division chief, said he probably would hear one more witness in the case of Vossler & Vossler, Inc., Cincinnati Securities firm, and Ohio Mines, Inc., before giving a transscript of the testimony to the prosecuotrs for possible grand jury action.

The former officials involved are Edwin Judy, who was an attorney-examiner, and Edward T. Carney, at one time chief of the Securities Division. Judy and Carney, who resigned last year, have been accused of profiting on stock licensed by the division.

Start New Probe.

The division will take up tomorrow the American Securities Corporation, whose license to deal in securities was suspended, and the Forest City Brewery, Inc., of Cleveland, whose stock registration was suspended. American Securities, which occupies an office with Carney in Columbus, handled the Forest City stock.

Moore debated today what to do about the stock registration of Ohio mines, whose shares were sold by Vossler & Vossler before the division refused to renew its license to deal in securities.

Witnesses have testified that Vossler & Vossler purchased the stock at 18 and 29 cents a share and the division qualified it for saleat $2 a share.

Gordon Lawrence of Cincinnati, former auditor for Vossler & Vossler, testified yesterday he believed the Nevada gold and silver mine of Ohio mines could be put on a paying basis, subject to determination of its raw materials.

He said the company in its balance sheet once valued the deposits in its 760 acres at $2,500,000, but cut the valuation to $500,000 at his suggestion.

Asked by Moore if he believed Ohio mines could have paid dividends, Lawrence replied he had not seen a statement of earnings and "you can't pay dividends except out of earnings."

PLANS PROGRAM

Red Cross Prepares Summer Swimming Schedule.

Plans for the summer swimming and life saving program of the Richland county Red Cross got under way today when Fred L. Tracy, chairman of the life saving committee, met with members of this group at Red Cross headquarters.

Farnum S. Coffin, who served as full-time swimming instructor last summer, was rehired for the three summer months this year, starting June 15. He will conduct classes in swimming and life saving at Casino and Liberty park pools, and at the Shelby Children's home, Boy Scouts' camp and Westbrook Country club pools.

The 6,000 questionnaires on swimming which were distributed in Mansfield through the public schools, were considered this morning in making plans. The questionnaires were sent out to determine what parents wanted for their children in the way of water activities this summer.

It was decided to set aside one night a week at each of the public pools for family swimming instructions, and for employed groups. Daily classes will be arranged later for each school, Tracy said.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Legislator Patman Pens Book Explaining the Fine Points of Law He Drew

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Dun's Review for the month of March contained a column advertisement of a book by the Honorable Wright Patman, member of congress from Texas and author of a law whose ambiguities seem to spring from the very soil of his homeland. Mr. Patman comes from Texarkana, Texark, which has—or used to have—two city halls, one on each side of the Texas-Akransas boundary and a federal post office balanced nicely astride it.

"The Robinson-Patman act," the advertisement begins. "What you can and cannot do under this law, by Wright Patman, member of congress.

"This first-hand authority deals with questions arising under the act from the standpoint of those who must do business in accordance with it. Answers nearly 400 questions as to the effect of the law on specific trade practices, covering all sorts of distributing arrangements, setting of prices and discounts, fixing sales territories, location of warehouses, selection of wholesalers versus your own salesmen, etc.

"Many questions go into complex, difficult points, involving nice interpretations and consideration of the extent of the law. On all Mr. Patman gives his opinion on how to operate legally and advantageously under the act's provisions.

"Twenty-six chapters cover the purpose of the act, when price discriminations are lawful, price discrimination 'to meet competition,' who are in competition, cash discounts and terms of sale, advertising, other forms of promotional allowances, exemption as to perishables, obsolescence, selection of customers"—

* * *

Much more wordage is required to describe a book selling at $4.50 which is required to explain a law by which men and companies endeavoring to sell a pair of overalls or a package of prunes are required to do or refrain from doing certain things under various penalties, including imprisonment, possibly, at the discretion of the director of prisons, in Alcatraz. I have seen Alcatraz from a safe distance and it does seem a trifle extreme to threaten men with immurement there for violation of an act one of whose parents admits that it is capable of "nice interpretations" but would induce his customers to operate "advantageously" within its provisions as he perceives them.

No longer ago than last June Mr. Roosevelt passed some rather harsh remarks about citizens who operate within the provisions of the income tax law, but "advantageously." He took the position that it was immoral and unethical to operate "advantageously," and here now is Mr. Patman counseling the citizens, at $4.50 per copy, to take advantage of his law according to his interpretation. Yet he offers no guarantee that the advantages which he points out for $4.50 will be upheld by the courts and appears to be working both sides of the street, with no responsibility on either side.

* * *

Nobody can sue a statesman for framing a law which is so complex and obscure that an innocent man may be had up for criminal violation. Neither can anyone sue him as author for an unreliable interpretation if that version be repudiated by a majority of the nine old men.

Mr. Patman's dual character here suggests an opportunity for the establishment of a profitable racket which would be legally operable from the halls of the sacred heritage on Capitol Hill. First pass a law so complex and so fraught with opportunities for "nice interpretation" that, admittedly, no citizen could be expected to know what it means, though his liberty depends upon compliance, and then write a book at $4.50 per copy explaining all, but on the basis of caveat emptor.

* * *

Naturally I have not read the Robinson-Patman act, but in view of Mr. Patman's venture into the ever more popular Washington field of commercial literature I am curious regarding one specific question. In that section of his law governing the book trade did Mr. Patman make it a criminal offense for anyone having bought a $4.50 book to lend that book to a friend, so the friend need not buy one, thus doing the deserving author out of his royalty of 67½ cents?

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—A gentleman of parts—even besides those he plays in pictures—is Maxie Rosenbloom who glories in the nickname of "Slapsie Maxie."

Maxie (in case you don't follow the sports page, he's a pugilist) has a night club now in Hollywood. After a hard day before the cameras, he runs out to his place and hosts. And he sometimes sings, too, although singing is not among his best bids for fame.

* * *

The other evening Claire Trevor came in, escorted by a young man from the radio station where she'd been doing a broadcast, and Maxie's excitement was feverish. He announced her presence to the crowd, and in a fervor of joy, delirium, or just plain romantic recklessness, ordered drinks for the house. And then, to make welcome doubly golden, he offered to sing any number Miss Trevor requested. She asked for "Thanks for the Memory," a number not in Maxie's repertory, but he gave it to her.

Afterward Maxie asked Miss Trevor what she thought of his singing, and the reply was "It's very—interesting."

Maxie, on the set of "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" where Miss Trevor also works, was still wondering a few days later what she meant by that.

* * *

For Maxie has made no secret of the fact that he admires Miss Trevor exceedingly and with tenderness. Everyone on the set knows, or could if interested, that seven times Maxie has invited Miss Trevor to accompany him to prize fights, nights clubs, theaters, movies, or anywhere she'd like to go. And seven times Miss Trevor has had a previous engagement, or had to study, or didn't feel very well.

But Maxie, to his intimates, professes himself undaunted.

"I'll keep on asking her," he tells them brightly.

And his movie career is booming. After this one, he's going to play with Wayne Morris in "something about jy-inis—yeah, that's it—Valley of the Giants." He has a fight coming up, too, with Lee Ramage, but he thinks he'll skip that if it interferes with his movie career.

Maxie is more interested in his new career than in the old one. Reason: in the past 17 years he's fought 360 matches but seen about 700; in the same time he figures he's seen about 2,000 shows—indicating that his heart is in the show-business even though the ring left its mark upon his cauliflower ear.

Tempts Girl Then Seeks To Avoid Her

By VIRGINIA LEE

Just what type of person is it who tempts a friend to go wrong and then shuns said friend when they have yielded to that temptation?

I'm afraid my opinion of such a one is not high. It seems to me it's a dirty trick to "test" a pal that way. Of course the friend should not yield to temptation. He or she should be strong, but we sometimes do things we would not ordinarily do and which we know to be wrong, to please some one we love very much.

Well, anyhow, MARCIA says she and a boy fell in love with each other at first sight and began going out together. The last time he took her out he "took advantage of" her, she writes, and now he studiously avoids her—thinks her cheap, she says. "I like him so much and was so shocked at his actions that I couldn't seem to do anything about it," her letter says.

Well, my opinion of your boy friend is that he is cheaper than you are, if you get what I mean? Why should he take this high moral attitude after such action? "The woman did tempt me and I fell," is an old story, if you recall. I should have thought his actions would have shocked you enough that you would have lost all your love for him very rapidly. For my part, I cannot see why you want to speak to him. I should think you would be the one to avoid him and cut him from your list of acquaintances.

I wonder what he would think of a girl who would, knowing he was crazy about her, tempt him to do something immoral. I bet he would be shocked, and if he yielded to the temptation because he loved her so, he would make up his mind, when sober thought returned, that she was a very undesirable person to chum around with instead of moaning that she wouldn't speak to him again.

I think he treated you in a beastly manner. Let this be a lesson to you, as the moralists say and the minute a boy makes any such advances to you resent it with all your might. Then have nothing more to do with him.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, April 8.

Judging by the astral influences, the personal affairs may engage the attention owing to some perplexing, confusing or tricky angles, causing much vexation of anxiety. It is possible that a very treacherous matter may be forced into the open and settled. Papers, writings and documents are involved in this, and these should be carefully considered and guarded against loss. The affairs with young people are important under this rule.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of some cross purposes, especially in their intimate affairs, which have angles of duplicity or secrecy of a very irritating or confusing nature. These may be brought out into the open to be settled, but in all connections be wise with papers, and guard against their loss. Young people seem to have significance this year.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be devoted to the pursuit of pleasure rather than serious affairs of life. It may be bright, clever but fun loving and averse to assuming responsibilities. It may marry very young.

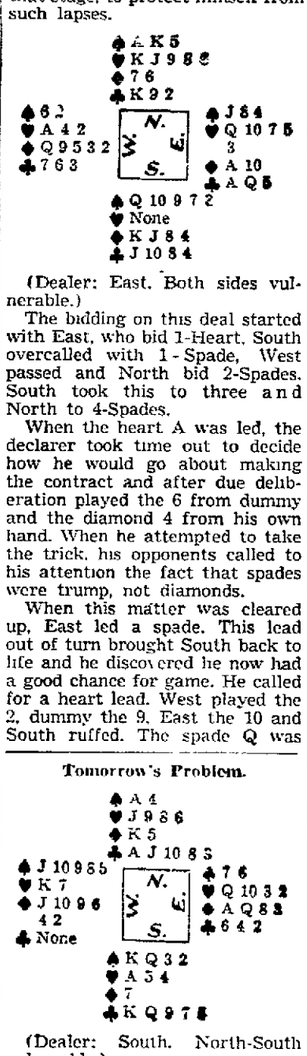
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHEN HOMERS NOD

All homers nod when they get sleepy. That last rubber of a long evening is the one to watch if you like to see revokes, leads out of turn and effort to ruff tricks with a suit which is not the trump. Rare is the player who has learned to use a little more care at that stage, to protect himself from such lapses.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal started with East, who bid 1-Heart. South overcalled with 1-Spade, West passed and North bid 2-Spades. South took this to three and North to 4-Spades.

When the heart A was led, the declarer took time out to decide how he would go about making the contract and after due deliberation played the 6 from dummy and the diamond 4 from his own hand. When he attempted to take the trick, his opponents called to his attention the fact that spades were trump, not diamonds.

When this matter was cleared up, East led a spade. This lead out of turn brought South back to life and he discovered he now had a good chance for game. He called for a heart lead. West played the 2, dummy the 9, East the 10 and South ruffed. The spade Q was next cashed, followed by the spade K. The heart 8 was led, East covered with the Q and South ruffed. The spade A was played and the two high hearts cashed, on which South discarded a club and a diamond. When a diamond was now led, East played the 10 and South the K. The diamond J now threw East in the lead with the A, and East was obliged to lead a club.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What should East lead against North's contract of 6-No Trumps?

THEATER

THIS AND THAT: Just another face on the cutting room floor is that of "Prince" Mike Ramanoff, New York's biggest and most boring humbug. He was hired at $25 a day for Carole Lombard's new picture, but when the film was finally assembled, Mike was just a face on the cutting room floor . . . For the second time, a woman knocks David Niven out cold — in a picture. Claudette Colbert did it in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" and Loretta Young will K. O. him again in "Three Blind Mice" . . . So kindly received was young Tim Holt in his last two pictures that he is now considered one of the best among juvenile actors. He was the good-looking, reckless brother of Olivia de Havilland in "Gold Is Where You Find It." He also did a role in "I Met My Love Again."

Talent Quest Ends.

Tommy Kelly who plays Tom Sawyer in the Selznick production "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," was chosen for the role after 25,000 youngsters had been either interviewed or their pictures passed on. It was ironical that the boy who was to play a small-town, old fashioned character should come from America's largest city. He is a most attractive and likeable youngster. The picture, done in technicolor, brings to the screen all of the characters of the boyhood classic. The hills and the rivers of the Ozark country have been beautifully filmed for this. A stage show will be added to the opening of "Tom Sawyer" at the Ohio tonight when the final contest of the talent quest is held. There will be seven acts from which the final winner for the Mansfield district will be chosen.

Real Life Story.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison, who has shown a sincere interest in convicts and in modernizing penal institutions, is the author of "Over The Wall," opening today at the Madison, and in it he depicts some of the things that go on behind prison walls. Lawes need not rely on imagination for his material, but can draw on thousands of real life stories he has known. An interesting feature of "Over The Wall" is that it introduces Dick Foran, erst-while singing sowboy, as a straight dramatic leading man. John Litel and June Travis appear with Foran in leading roles. Miss Travis his sweetheart and Litel as a fighting prison chaplain.

Lou Gehrig in Film.

Pretty Anna Lee and John Loder, both popular in the English cinema, are starred in "Non Stop New York," a Gaumont-British film opening at the Majestic Friday. With much of its action taking place on board a luxury liner making a non-stop flight between London and New York City, it revolves around a chorus girl, out of prison where she served a sentence for stealing, becoming embroiled with gangsters and a gangster's murder. Of interest to Mansfield sport fans is the announncement that the Majestic's weekly Western film, "Rawhide," shown Friday and Saturday, features Lou Gehrig along with Smith Ballew Western hero who made a personal appearance in Mansfield recently.

Will Rogers Picture.

The fans who are still loyal to the memory of Will Rogers are clamoring for his old pictures, and a number of them are being reissued by Fox. Among them is "Handy Andy," which the Ritz offers Friday and Saturday along with the usual Western. The picture, made from the play, "Merry Andrew" was made before Robert Taylor became a screen idol. He has the juvenile lead in it opposite Mary Carlisle. Peggy Wood plays Will's socially ambitious wife who naggs him to sell his old fashioned but prosperous drug store. She drags him to the Mardi Gras at New Orleans, where Will teaches her a thing or two about playing.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I fairly held my breath as the woman in the next booth finished her defiance of Dicky with the blatant inquiry, "And what is this answer you're broadcasting?"

I knew his fiery temper, and was afraid that the taunts she had hurled at him might unleash his anger to such an extent that he would forget his horror of a scene and say or do something which would cause him untold humiliation afterward.

That Mary shared my fear, I knew by her dilated eyes and her fingers clenched into her palms. But at Dicky's first measured words, her fingers unclenched, and her eyes regained their normal expression.

Voices Contempt.

"I shall not deprive you of your dinner," he said with icy contempt. "I shall pay for both dinners, so that if you have any friend you care to invite to eat with you, you have my full permission to invite —him."

He hesitated with what I knew was premeditated insolence before the pronoun, and I heard the woman draw a sibilant breath. But she made no answer—I guessed she was consumed with curiosity as to just what Dicky meant to do, and he went on.

"I will even tell the waiter to serve you—and your companion—" he hesitated again—"two rounds of drinks, no more. Whenever you make up your mind to tell me exactly what you mean by your vague threats, I will listen to you Until then, I have the honor to wish you a very good day."

Dicky Leaves.

I could visualize his bow and the air of hauteur with which he invested it. Queerly enough, I had lost sight of the side of the affair which affected me. It was as if I were seated before a radio listening to some drama that did not concern me in the least.

"Dicky!"

The word was a melodramatic cry. But it was melodrama. I detected that. There was no sincerity in the call.

"You can't do this to me!" The words rang even more falsely than before. But they evidently were addressed to Dicky's retreating and uncompromising back, for there was no answer, and the next thing we heard was a suave, typical "rounder" masculine voice.

"I got your high sign, Kid. Sure it's all right for me to sit down? Sure he isn't coming back?"

"I'm as sure as you are of hell fire," the woman retorted, and the man laughed as if she had uttered a rare bon mot

"All right, Kid. It's all jake with me. What's the low down? Wouldn't he fall for it,"

Mary stiffened to attention, and I felt as rigid as if I were suddenly turned to stone. What sinister affair was this in which Dicky was involved?

"Not yet he won't." The answer was accompanied by a running string of invectives against Dicky. "But I'll bring him to time before I get through. We haven't played our trump card yet, you know."

"No. That ace is one sure good baby," the man replied. "But what is the layout here? Do I eat?"

"You don't do nothing else but," the woman replied. "If I were a lady, which thank the good Lord I'm not, I'd have sailed out of the room before he had a chance to pull the stunt of leaving me flat."

"He didn't leave you flat if he paid for this dinner," the man replied. "Or did he?" His voice was suddenly suspicious. "You're not ringing me in on something, are you? For if you are, you've picked the wrong baby. I'm stony broke today."

CREAM OF CARROT SOUP—Three large carrots, three medium sized potatoes, one onion, one tablespoon flour, two cups milk, one and one-half tablespoon butter, three tablespoons glycerine, one teaspoon chopped green pepper, one tablespoon chopped parsley, salt, pepper. Peel and slice carrots, onion and chopped pepper. Cook until tender in salted water. Mash through a coarse sieve, saving the stock. Prepare a white sauce with flour, butter and milk and add glycerine when cooked, mixing well. Add vegetables (sieved) and stock. Reheat, add parsley, salt and pepper to taste and beat with a rotary beater and serve very hot. A spoonful of whipped cream may be added before serving if desired.

There are two sides to the gabardine story for Spring . . . in smart men's wear for smart men — at GOLDSMITH'S . . . patterned gabardine, and plain gabardine . . . plain or sports backs . . . single or double breasted. Wherever you go . . . whatever the occasion may be . . . you can be sure that gabardine is fashion-right! This year new patterns and solids put gabardine into the style picture more than ever before. Be sure to include a new gabardine in your wardrobe for Spring and Summer of 1938. Most men are plugging for the double-breasted suit featuring natural lines. They say you feel better . . . look smarter in a double-breasted that drapes, flows, and follows the natural lines of your body. At GOLDSMITH'S you'll find new checks, stripes, plaids and herringbones in colors and mixtures for a man's Spring. You'll find all styles and materials there. As for topcoats—In order to get the style, warmth, comfort, lightness and durability that you want, a better job of tailoring plus the finest grade fabrics must go into a topcoat. Goldsmith's does this . . . yet a Goldsmith better topcoat costs very little more than the lowest priced topcoat. If you're planning on buying a topcoat this Spring, be sure to see their selection first. Go in and try on one of their smart raglans . . . notice the comfort and lightness . . . feel the smart ruggedness of the fabric . . . compare the price and quality with that of other coats!

The woman with the tailored suit will find plenty of proper softening accessories at REED'S... Firt, and "of all things" — hat pins, fancy ones, at $1. Smart purses in gabardine, patent and calf. Jewelry galore — from crawling jeweled lizards and perfume carrying monkeys to heavy silver pieces. Ultra-smart are the new Ombre, 2 tone, hand-dipped hosiery brought out by Gold Stripe in flame, adobe, and honey. They cost $1.50 a pair, and are slenderizing.

Have you seen the beautiful Easter window at STUHLDREHER'S ON FOURTH? It's all the work of Russell Berno, floral stylist there. In its beauty and simplicity it typifies all the work this young artist does with flowers . . . and it should give you an idea of the excellence of your bouquet arrangements, if you order your Easter flowers from STUHLDREHER'S. Incidentally, they have some new American made novelty pottery pieces. Most amusing, and only 35c to 65c.

While the men are puttering around outside the house "helping" with Spring housecleaning . . . the lady-of-the-house is hourly risking her neck inside the house. Cleaning out the high shelf in clothes closets . . . scrubbing and laying new shelf covering in kitchen cupboards. All necessary work and not too dangerous—if you have a firm footing. Better stop at MARTIN'S HARDWARE the next time you're down town and buy a well-built step stool. The cost will be small—89c or $1.25.

CONTENDS NEW YORK WRITERS' ATTACK ON HOLDOUT DI MAGGIO UNFAIR

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK—(NS)—According to the testimony of Giuseppe DiMaggio, the man who doesn't want the $25,000, the first thing he does of a morning is to read the sports pages and, after personally looking over a few around here today, I would hope, for the young man's peace of mind, that he doesn't read these. He will learn, for example, that Col. Jacob Ruppert is kindly, fair, mellow and generous to the point of error and that he, Giuseppe, is being "poorly advised."

He'll also learn that he other Yankee players are not for him, which is more than mildly surprising, since it seems fairly well established that he's pretty much for them. Anyhow, he hit 46 home runs for them last year.

In fewer words, when a local ball player gets fractious with a local club owner, all he has to do is get in touch with the local papers and he'll learn something to his advantage. They're now up to their usual antics in this respect, calling for sly references to the blackguard's shortcomings, if any, and brash predictions that he'll realize in due time that it was all an impulsive mistake, winding up with he hint that he won't be long now. Maybe they're talking about a man who has just had a haircut.

BELIEVE $25,000 ENOUGH FOR DIMAGGIO.

ANYWAY, it was a whispering campaign of this nature that once so enraged our Mr. Terry that, after waiting 12 years, he could contain himself no longer and wrote a magazine piece about it.

I have this today, for instance, from one of our maturer minds:

"Opinion is general that $25,000 is an adequate salary for any 23-year-old outfielder with only two years of major league play behind him."

Personally, I thought Life paid off on ability, not age but if that's the way it's to be, let's decide right now whether we're to give Shirley Temple her bright, new nickel in full, or pay her off in installments, and as for the Willie (Boy Wonder) Hoppe of 25 years ago, he certainly got away with homicide. He should have been charged at the usual rate of 2½ cents a cue.

DiMaggio offered $25,000 by the Yankees led both leagues in home runs and his own league in total hits, with 215 and in total bases, with 418. Gehrig, signed for $39,000 by the same employer, didn't even get 200 hits or any more than 37 home runs and his total bases were 366.

* * *

ACCOUNTS FOR FACT YANKEES ARE LOSING.

BUT the papers here have the Yankees saying they'd rather see Gehrig or Dickey up there when the old nip is on which probably accounts for the fact that the Yanks were able to beat a minor league club yesterday for the first time in five days. They've played 500 baseball being unable to hit, field or pitch. Outside of that, they've been magnificent so far and they've done this with Gehrig and Dickey, and without DiMaggio.

To get right down to brass thumb screws, the ball club's beginning to suspect that it's on the verge of a second [illegible] era with another Ruth and [illegible] now it seems to be [illegible] moved by the [illegible]

STAGE MODEST COMEBACK IN SLOW SESSION

Leaders Show Minor Gains; Capital Reports Only Moderately Stimulating.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks attempted a modest come-back in today's market with leaders recovering fractions to a point or more.

The reversal shift was at slow speed. Numerous issues were unchanged and there were a few losers in evidence.

Reports the administration was considering new pump priming measures to stem the industrial recession and diminish unemployment were only moderately stimulating.

The French political and financial crisis apparently kept some commission house customers in neutral territory. Foreign securities market, on the whole, pointed higher. Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Followers of motors studied figures of the American Automobile association disclosing shipments of cars in March were some 33,000 units better than February, but were sharply under the 1937 month.

Stressing troubles of steel makers was the summary of the American Iron and Steel institute estimating production of open hearth and Bessemer steel ingots in the first three months at the lowest mark since the final quarter of 1934. The aggregate was 62 per cent less than the 1937 first quarter volume.

REVERSES DIME STORE LAW SUIT

Supreme Court Orders New Hearing in Cosmetic Damage Action.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The state supreme court today sent back to the Stark common pleas court for rehearing Evelyn Driver's suit against the F. W. Woolworth company for damages to her health which she claimed resulted from use of mascara purchased from the company.

Miss Driver sued the company in Canton claiming the mascara poisoned her and brought about a long illness. The trial court awarded damages but the court of appeals held she should have introduced an analysis of the cosmetic in evidence and reversed the judgment sending it back to the common pleas court.

IGNORES PARTY

Van Nuys, Democrat, Says He'll Seek Re-election as Independent.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Van Nuys (D., Ind.) said today he had "practically decided" to ignore the Indiana Democratic primary and seek re-election as a straight-out independent.

Van Nuys, an opponent of the administration's court and government reorganization bills, has just returned from a two week's canvass of the Indiana political situation.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON—(AP)—U. S. Dept. Agr.)—A few scattered sales of small to moderate volume were being closed yesterday on domestic wools in the Boston market. Mills were doing some buying but thus far this week they have not been operating as freely in this market as during the previous two weeks. Recent sales included fine territory wools in original bag at 63 to 65 cents, scoured basis, for French combing lengths at 62 to 63 cents for average French combing lengths, and at 60 to 62 cents for short length combing. Spot country packed mixed grade lots of bright three-eighths and one-quarter blood fleece wools were sold at 25 to 26 cents in the grease.

Friends of Burton said this week that he might seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination if a municipal relief collapse were not averted.

'MODERN PIONEERS' WELCOMED BY HUGE THRONG AT MARIETTA

(By Associated Press)

MARIETTA — Townspeople and visitors, here for Ohio's official opening of the Northwest Territory's sesquicentennial celebration, thronged river banks today to extend a gala welcome to a band of modern pioneers re-enacting the arrival of Marietta settlers.

The landing of the 37 youthful members of the band was made at the confluence of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers here, 150 years to the hour after Gen. Rufus Putnam's little group of 48 actual pioneers arrived there.

It climaxed a tedious trek from old Ipswich, Mass., begun last Dec. 3 on the date and in the manner of the original settlers of Ohio's first city.

Thousands braved chilly spring winds and threatening rain to cheer the band's flotilla as it approached this flag and bunting bedecked city which has reverberated since the first of the week with music and pageantry in commemoration of its 150th anniversarys.

Mayor P. W. Griffiths estimated at about 100,000 the number of persons here for the celebration.

Factory and boat whistles, church and school bells signaled the approach of the hand-hewn flotilla comprised of replicas of "Union Galley" and "Adelphia Ferry," boats used by the original pioneers, and three small boats built by the college-boy pioneers while wintering at West Newton, Pa. The flotilla carried the oxen and Conestoga wagon which brought the band overland.

The flotilla had tarried upriver during the night to insure its landing here on schedule.

ICE CRIPPLES NORTHERN OHIO

Phone and Power Lines Fall In April Storm; Damage Runs Into Thousands.

Mansfield area late yesterday as heavy rain froze on trees and telephone and power lines. Snow changed to rain yesterday morning and the rainfall continued throughout the day and most of last night Precipitation for the past 24 hours, including snow and rain, measured well over an inch, Observer Otto Sprunger reported

Crestline was dark most of the night when two power poles were broken off along Washington avenue, carrying power lines into the street Big Four trains were given "slow" orders over Washington avenue crossing because of the damaged lines Telephone lines were down in other sections of town.

Marion Isolated.

Galion and Bucyrus reported utility poles down and street littered with tree branches, while Marion was virtually isolated with all telegraph and telephone service disrupted With United Press lines to the Bucyrus Telegraph-Forum out of service, The News-Journal furnished news service to that paper this morning.

Marion had 1 67 inches of rain in the past 24 hours.

In the Wooster area the storm left the villages of Holmesville Nashville and New Pittsburgh without electric power when lines were demolished under the ice load. R. T. Nash, superintendent of the Ohio Light and Power company, said the storm was the worst in the company's history

At Salem, Lee Saunders, city electrician was injured when he fell from a light pole while repairing line damage Traffic north of the city was halted for an hour when a high tension line fell across route 14 International News Service dispatches said

The storm area was 300 miles wide and extended from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic coast Cleveland had 7 4 inches of snow, the heaviest fall of the season, and other lake cities reported from four to six inches of snow.

The snow was the heaviest in more than a year in some sections, Associated Press reports said. It was reported 30 inches deep in southwest Michigan, 17 inches in South Dakota, and nine inches in Chicago

Heavy gales in most of the sections hit by the storm caused added damage to trees and utility lines, already bearing the burdens of tons of ice

Coldest April 6 In Years.

Temperatures in the east were lowest in years for April Boston reporting 25 degrees for the lowest April 6 reading in 51 years. Hartford Conn had 24 degrees for the lowest mark for April 6 in the history of the weather bureau

Most of the one and half inch snowfall in Mansfield was washed away yesterday by nearly an inch of rain Ice was three-fourths of an inch thick on trees and wires, and telephone officials estimated that a single wire over the length of a city block collected as much as 500 pounds of ice

Highways, Streets Clear.

Despite the snow and ice, street and highways were virtually clear and no major accidents were reported in the Richland county area The snow caused water to back up on streets in Mansfield last night and miniature lakes formed all over the city

Six persons narrowly escaped injury at the Union Bus station, North Diamond street at 2 a m today when a metal base cover on a whiteway light front was blown through a plate glass window at the station Gerald Murphy Fredericktown night agent at the depot said the base about three feet across was thrown 30 feet into the station waiting room Loss was estimated at $100.

Officials of the Ohio Public Service company said they believed the explosion was caused by ice and water which seeped into the base of the light.

Horticulturists said they believed the snow and ice coating would serve as a protection to fruit trees against freezing temperatures The mercury in Mansfield dropped to 29 degrees last night and at noon had climbed only three degrees to 32.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood These poisons may start nagging backaches rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

INTEREST COSTS CUT INTO STATE SCHOOL FUNDS

Borrowing Under Foundation Program Increases Annual Expenditures $750,000.

Inadequate financing of the state school foundation program was estimated today to be costing taxpayers $750,000 a year, an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus said today.

Dr. D. H. Sutton, director of school finance in the department of education, said the $750,000 was being paid by school districts as interest on money borrowed to finance operation of their schools.

Payment of this interest would not be necessary, he said, if the state paid promptly to the school districts the share of educational costs it is obligated to meet under the school foundation program.

The state can't pay promptly, however, because it does not have the money, Dr. Sutton explained. The state is runnin gabout $11,800,000 behind schedule on its payments to the districts, and he estimated that by the end of the year there would be a deficit of $12,000,000 in the state public school fund, which finances the foundation program.

Last November the state was The state is running about $11,800,000 to the districts. The money on hand for allocation, however, had to be used for paying obligations already incurred by the districts. So the state department of education told the districts to borrow the $11,800,000, and it would pay the loans later. Last Feb. 28, the districts were entitled to another distribution of $11,164,000. Again, this distribution had to be applied to payment of the $11,800,000 in loans. So the districts were authorized to borrow again, this time $11,164,000, which the state promised to pay.

While the state pays the principal of the school district's loans, the districts themselves have to pay the interest. And this is where they are paying out $750,000 a year, Dr. Sutton said.

City Board Owes $45,000.

The Mansfield board of education, which yesterday received $23,546 from the state to retire notes authorized in December, still owes approximately $45,000 which was borrowed last week against future allocations of state funds, Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the board, said.

The board has rarely been out of debt since the foundation program was set up in 1935 and is forced to pay interest on the debts until state funds are received to pay them.

The county's rural districts were allocated $29,455, but Supt. Boyd Robinson said some of them have not borrowed and will be permitted to use the money for current operating expenses.

The legislature estimated the reasonable minimum cost for educating a child for a 9-month term was $45 for elementary pupils and $67.50 for those in high schools. It wrote this standard into the law.

Then the legislature empowered local school subdivisions to seek approval of 3-mill levies for operating purposes, assessed against real estate in the district. This revenue is in addition to what schools receive within the 10-mill limitation.

If the 3 mill levy plus "inside" revenue yields money sufficient to pay $45 per elementary pupils and $67.50 per high school pupil, the district receives no state aid. If levy is insufficient, the state pays the difference.

The estimated cost to the state of the foundation program for 1938, exclusive of the districts' share, is $49,831,000.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Police raided their first cock fight in 20 years and were greatly disappointed. Two birds were fighting on a carpet in a Harlem flat. There was no blood, no sign of any of the 11 birds confiscated having been injured, and it seemed a tame sport. Forty-eight men who had been watching the fight were arrested.

COURT COSTS, JUDGMENT EAT UP MARTIN'S SHARE OF KIN'S ESTATE

When Allen B. Martin, 58 Glessner avenue, one of the unsuccessful contestants of the will of his late uncle, William B. Martin, pays court costs amounting to $140, attorney fees and a judgment for $743 against him in municipal court, he will have little more than pocket change left from a $1,000 bequest he received in his uncle's will.

Young Martin lost his case against Roeliff B. Martin, Cleveland, half-brother of the late hardware dealer, last Thursday when a directed verdict upholding the will was returned in common pleas court.

His motion for a new trial was overruled Tuesday and the court costs assessed against him.

In addition, John Brandt, 125 West First street, had filed an action in municipal court today seeking to collect on a $743 judgment for back rent. Brandt named both Martin and A. E. Courtney, executor of the William B. Martin estate, in his action. Courtney had been instructed to make the bequests specified in the will, including the $1,000 to Allen B. Martin.

Atty. William F. Black, counsel for Roeliff B. Martin, one of the defendants in the will suit, said he had received a letter from Jesse Vickery, Cleveland, an attorney, for the plaintiff, saying that he would do nothing further with the case. Atty. Vickery had urged the court to sustain the defense motion for a directed verdict. The motion for a new trial was filed by Atty. C. F. Creedman, the plaintiff's other attorney.

Mr. Martin's will provided for the distribution of the bulk of an estate valued at approximately $80,000 to Roeliff B. Martin.

JAPS 'RESENT' U. S. PLAN FOR 'BIGGER NAVY'

Spokesman Says Nippon Sees Herself Pacific Defender, Expresses 'Concern.'

(By United Press)

TOKYO — A Japanese navy spokesman said today that Japan regarded herself as defender of the Western (Asiatic) Pacific and would gravely resent any increased naval activities by other powers in that area.

The statement referred directly to the United States. The spokesman was Rear Admiral Kiyoshi Noda, chief of the navy information bureau and official spokesman. He expressed the imperial navy's "grave concern" over American naval activities, including the extension of the American navy "frontier," the apparent American determination to maintain a ratio of five tons of warships to each three for Japan, and the new billion dollar American navy program with its provision for super-battleships.

Urges Arms Increase.

Significance of the navy statement, as indicative of the feeling of Japanse leaders toward the United States and foreign powers generally, was increased by a speech of Gen. Gen Gugiyama, war minister.

Gen. Gugiyama spoke with unusual candor to a conference of generals in command of divisions, and said:

"We are far from attaining our military objectives in the current incident (the Chinese war) and none can foretell the future of the international situation."

He urged extraordinary efforts to increase and maintain Japan's fighting strength.

Admiral Noda's statement, however, overshadowed that of the war minister.

First Admiral Noda announced that Japan regarded herself as defender of the Western Pacific and therefore would gravely resent any increased naval activities by other powers in that area. Then he said that the apparent enlargement of the American naval frontier was being watched by Japan "with very grave concern."

Refers to 3 Powers.

Discussing next the decision of the United States, Great Britain and France to invoke the "escalator" clause of their 1936 navy treaty so that they would be free to build battleships of more than 35,000 tons, Admiral Noda said that Japan's position was defined when she refused to give details of her building program.

He meant that his government's refusal to give specific assurances that Japan was not exceeding the limits for tonnage of individual warships was made with the knowledge that refusal meant the invocation of the escalator clause.

The government holds that its navy is built for defense alone.

Turning to the Western Pacific, Admiral Noda said:

"Formerly America regarded her defense area as being near her coast lines. But Secretary Hull's letter to Senator Walsh indicates that America's defense line is advancing westward.

"If the American policy means sticking to the 5-5-3 ratio (five tons of warships each for America and Great Britain to each three for Japan) and opposing the establishment of a definite naval frontier, we are watching with very grave concern.

"It is especially difficult to find a reason for America to maintain that ratio."

A Farmer's Diary

April 6.

THIS morning before dawn our Easter storm began. The wind drove from the east and with it the swirl of eddying flakes—now large like little puffs of down, now fine like mist.

The landscape changed from green to winter's finest etchings. The wind roared through the woodland lot. The brook went murmuring beneath an icy crust of snow. Old Man Winter has returned to cast one long last lingering look and pay his respects to Spring.

I drove to town on icy highways. The cinder truck scattered ashes on the hills as it did so many times on winter mornings.

All day the rain and sleet fell heavily and made the hollows of fields and roadside ponds of steel gray slush. The cars went sloshing on the road spreading bits of snow and water twice their width. When traveling farther on each car appeared to enclose itself in a misty cover. Alas for the pedestrian passing near. Both he and his fate were sealed.

This evening I noticed green fields of wheat half buried in slush. The hilly pastures looked like crazy quilts of white, bright green and drab. The shrubs, sheltered by house and porch, had every half-grown leaf and stem sealed in ice as clear as glass. Tall ornamental trees and dwarf cedars stood still and burdened, like knights in coats of mail.

The poor robins flew about the farmyard bewildered and discouraged. The bluebird vanished to the shelter of evergreens and banks of streams. Tonight the sweet note of the meadow-lark is absent, the pee-wee's voice is silent. The wild folk will suffer heavily tonight.

ENGLISH HUMOR

'Just Married' Sign Hung on Door of Newlyweds.

EASTLEIGH, Eng.—(AP)—Here is an example of a pratical joke in England:

A newly married couple awakened the morning after their marriage to find a laughing crowd in front of their home.

On the front door had been printed in large letters "Just Married. Do No Disturb."

2 VETERAN GALION TEACHERS RETIRE FROM SCHOOL FACULTY

GALION—When school starts in Galion next fall, two of its most familiar and well liked teachers will be absent from the faculty rolls. Grace Weston who started teaching in 1900 in the Galion high school, and D. E. Shaffer, who came to Galion five years later, tendered their resignations to the board of education this week in order to take advantage of the retirement allowance for teachers.

Miss Weston, for a number of years, has served as assistant principal of Galion high school, and co-sponsor with Principal W. L. Swick to the senior class. She organized the Girl Reserves in 1926 and has served as sponsor of the group since that time. She has always acted as an advisor to all girl students of the high school.

A native of Auburn, N. Y., Miss Weston came to Galion for her last two years of high school, and then graduated from Oberlin colleges. After a year out of college she became a teacher in the Shelby high school for two years and served as principal there. Coming to Galion in 1900 she has always taught some brach of mathematics. She is now teaching algebra, geometry and commercial geography.

While no special plans have been made for the future, Miss Weston hopes to travel some. She has traveled extensively in the United States, Canada, Alaska and through the Panama Canal.

Besides her school work she is now serving as an elder in the Presbyterian church where she is also sponsor of the Glory Road Girls. She is a member of the Research club, and the Business and Professional Woman's club.

Since 1905 D. E. Shaffer has taught Galion boys and girls to draw and paint. Through his interest, he has stimulated a liking for art, and many graduates who have made art their career, owe their incentive to the teachings of Shaffer.

During his years of teaching he has included manual training with his art instruction, and for a time was an instructor in the shop department. In the last few years he has acted as art supervisor.

He was born on a farm in Richland county near Bellville, and was graduated from Bellville high school. He later attended Valparaiso Normal school, and Ohio State university. In 1898 he started tetaching in Perry township, Richland countl, and later taught at Huntsville. He then went to Clyde, Ohio., where he tought art and academic studies. From Clyde, he came to Galion.

He and Mrs. Shaffer plan to enjoy some travel together, and he will also devote a part of his time to his farm near Lexington.

2 DRIVERS GET FINES IN COURT

Second Arrested as Officer Returns From Accident Involving First.

Two motorists who stepped on the gas while a heavy slush covered the roads yesterday, found the procedure hard on the pocketbook when arraigned before Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch on charges of careless and reckless driving.

Kenneth O. Moore, of Cardington, convicted on the charge, paid a fine of $10 and costs and Edward R. Roberts of Granville, was fined $20 and costs on his plea of guilty.

Corporal Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol testified that Moore, driving a truck on route 30S, five miles west of the city yesterday caused a three-car crash. The officer said that the driver hit the rear of a truck operated by Ray Good, R. D. 4, Ashland, in attempting to pass the truck and then skidded across the highway into the path of a car operated by Thomas Crawford, R. D. 6, Mansfield, approaching from the opposite direction.

He said that the Crawford machine was badly damaged but that none of the drivers was hurt.

Returning to Mansfield from the accident, Radcliffe said he arrested Roberts, who was traveling at a high rate of speed, and who narrowly avoided a collision with another car on the slippery pavement. He said he clocked the car at a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Book of the Week

"JOURNEYS BETWEEN WARS," by John Dos Passos; (Harcourt, Brace: $3.)

* * *

JOHN DOS PASSOS has assembled 395 pages of the pieces he has written when on the wing into a book he calls "Journeys Between Wars." These are not altogether old pieces; some of the material is new. The effect of the whole is extraordinary.

Dos Passos is a curious sort of traveler. For one thing, he is not much annoyed by the irritations of travel. Only occasionally do these warp his viewpoint. On the other hand, he is a traveler who travels to justify an image in his mind, rather than to report precisely what he sees.

Wherever he goes, to Russia, to Spain, to South America, he has before his eyes a kind of generalized, romanticized picture of the land and the people, and frequently even an image of their economic and political situation.

This is very well illustrated by the first half hundred pages—or more. These describe a walking trip from Madrid to the sea by way of Toledo, undertaken shortly after the war. The scenes in Madrid are a little tentative, although there is a bit about a dancer which probably is not exact reporting, but which certainly is effective prose. Then the travelers, a little drunk, walk out of Madrid, walk all night.

That is when Dos Passos begins recognizing the vision he has. The fields become glories, no matter what they contain. A man on a horse becomes a symbolic figure, and the horse itself something out of Cervantes. The little wine shops shake off their filth for Dos Passos, and the inns banish their bedbugs for the moment.

At Toledo the Alcazar is incredibly beautiful (it was an effective building, but one might not think it beautiful). A walk through the narrow streets finds the faces of women behind every lattice; when oranges and slops are poured on the traveler and his friends, it is an adventure, not the just result of an indiscretion.

There is such richness in some of this prose, and it produces such a succession of images, that one cares very little whether the images came out of the writer's mind, or are truth.—By J. S.

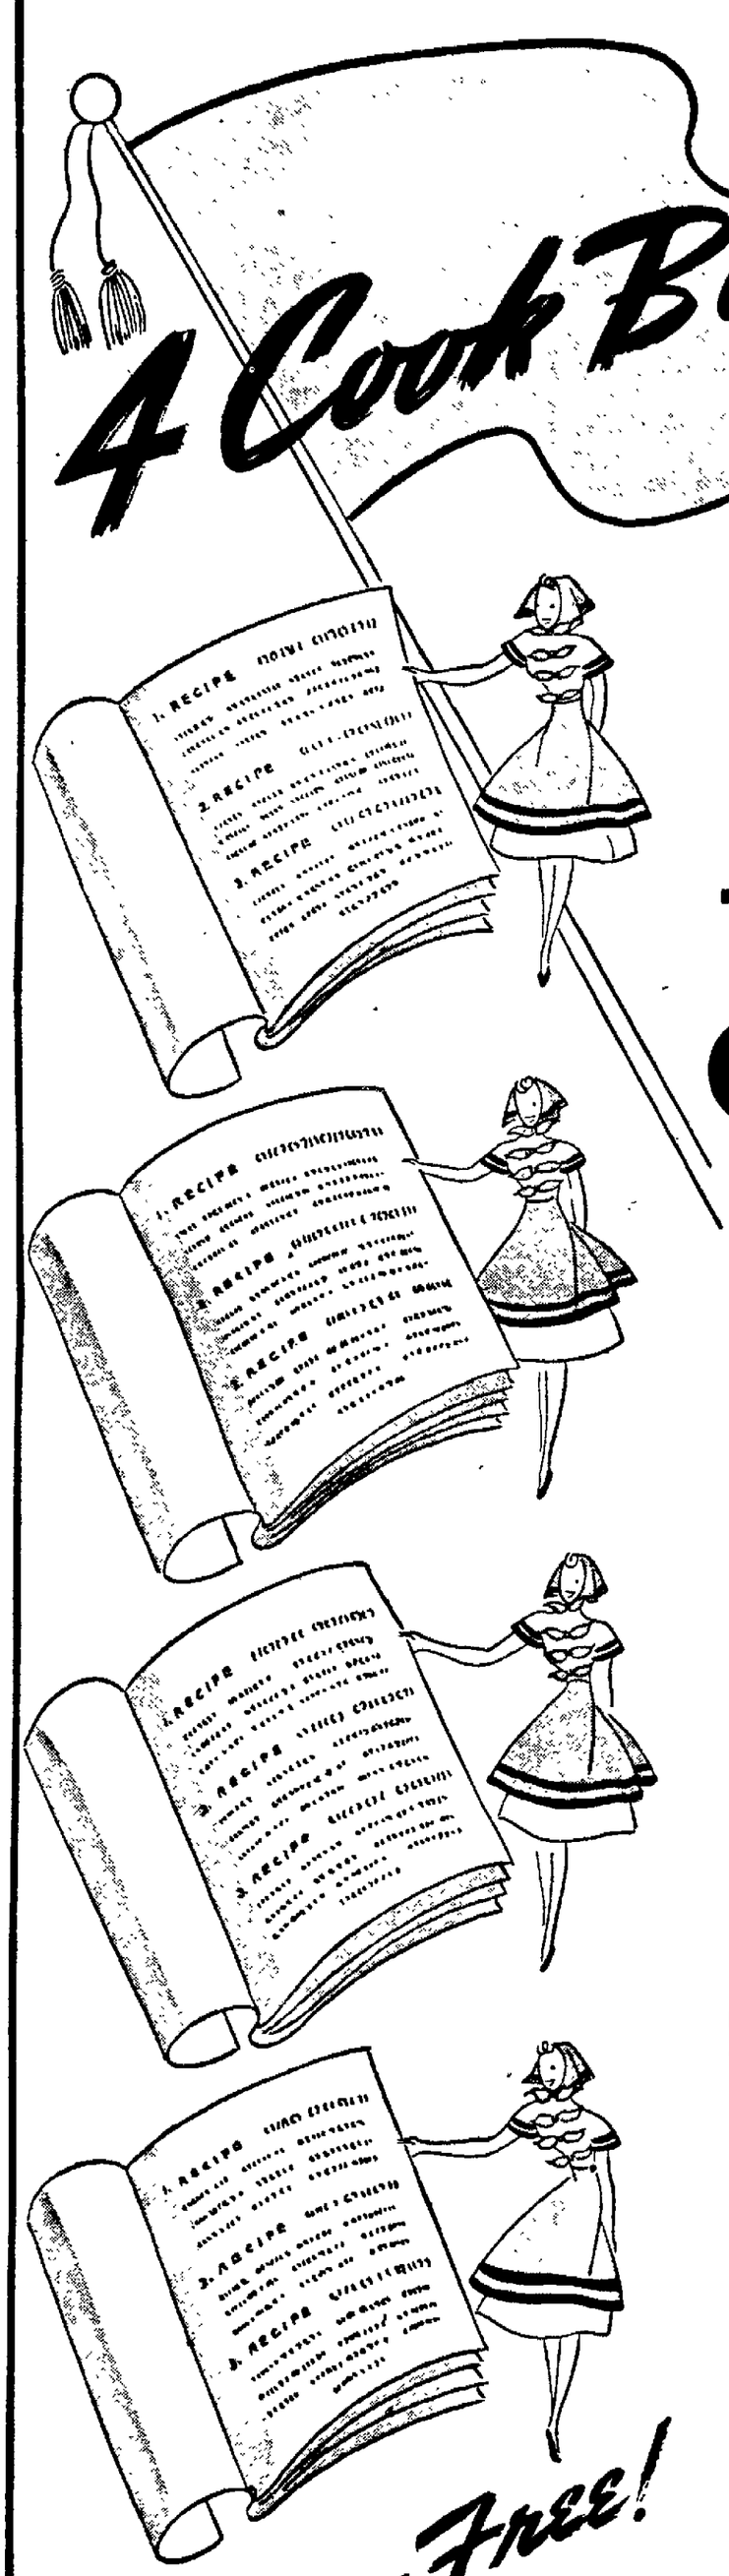
Food Fashion Revue
COOKING SCHOOL



Do you realize that this means a collection of 107 of the very finest, most practical recipes being offered in America today? No, we are not being extravagant in that statement. These are the cooking school recipes which will be demonstrated by the lecturer at the FOOD FASHION REVUE Cooking School. She chose them from hundreds collected by her for consideration, selecting only those which she believed would be most interesting and helpful to Mrs. American Housewife. She tested every recipe in her own laboratory-kitchen before giving it the final "O. K." which included it in this valuable group. At the cooking school you will see her prepare these recipes, will learn from her the most attractive ways to serve them, will see what they should look like when you repeat them in your own home, for she will display each dish under the spotlight before a great revolving mirror in the grand finale of each day's program, "Food Fashion Reflections."

VOK

Miss Ruth Chambers
of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Lecturer for FOOD FASHION REVUE Cooking School

Each of the 107 recipes in this fine collection bears the cooking school lecturer's personal endorsement. She has checked it in her own test kitchen, and at the cooking school you will see just how she goes about its preparation.

• MEAT BUYING GUIDES

FOOD FASHION REVUE Cooking School Cook Books contain new buying guides for beef, pork, lamb and veal. These have just been completed by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, and are the last word in information of this sort. The guides picture the various divisions of the meat carcass, showing where each meat cut comes from, what it looks like when purchased at the meat market, and telling what cooking method should be used.

• MEAL PLANNING CHARTS

One section of each of these four FOOD FASHION REVUE Cooking School Cook Books is devoted to meal planning—and the meals are planned around the cooking school recipes! Perhaps the recipe is the Porto Rican pot-roast. A glance at the meal planning chart tells what starchy food, other vegetable, bread, accompaniment, salad and dessert will go well with this dish. This section gives scores of answers to that question, "What shall we have for dinner today?"

Sometime it will be realized that you can't "soak the rich" without also dousing the poor.

News item says: "Two rare monkeys, deemed an evolution link, are headed for the United States"—probably for a speaking tour.

A bill to limit the length of freight trains has been put aside temporarily—business being such that a long freight train is quite a novelty.

Must Politicians Be Dumb?

WHETHER or not you agree with a single word that is said in it, there is something for you to think about in Elsie Robinson's "Listen World" article, in the other top corner of this page.

A large part of the article is given over to a letter written by a Detroit young woman who expresses belief that politicians and public office holders should be trained for their work—just as is required in other professions and trades.

While the charge should not be made general, it has long been a matter of common knowledge that methods of electing and appointing people to public office under the political party system in vogue in this country have not safeguarded against placing positions of high responsibility in the hands of ignorant, stupid and sometimes dishonest persons who are in no way fitted for the work they are expected to do.

That such a nonsensical situation will eventually be corrected cannot be doubted—but it inflicts a heavy penalty on the citizenship compelled to support such a system.

It is gratifying to know that at least some of the present-day young people have awakened to recognition of weaknesses in the operation of public business.

They should also understand that the fault is not with the principles of government in the United States and its subdivisions—but with inefficient human agencies through which it is administered.

The Dionnes as Baby-Producers.

AS BIOLOGICAL SPECIMENS, studied with a view to determining the extent of procreative possibilities of the human animal, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, of Callander, Canada, may make a valuable contribution to science.

At the age of 28 Mrs. Dionne has given birth to 13 children—including the quintuplets, by the production of which Nature conferred a considerable favor on the otherwise poverty-ridden family.

On the basis of present age—and with reasonable luck in bearing additional multiples—the Dionnes may be able to establish a new record of fecundity.

With such an example widely followed, and without a feeling of responsibility on the part of parents to provide for their own children, there would be no great difficulty—within a few generations—to repopulate the entire earth with Dionnes, and their like.

Except for the money-making that resulted from the quintuplet episode, the Dionnes have evidenced no ability to be self-sustaining or to provide for their steadily growing family.

In addition to being biological specimens, the Dionnes may also merit study in connection with social security problems. Quintuplet births are too rare to be depended upon to support hopeful indigents.

Injustice In Ohio's Sales Tax System.

BEFORE the people of Ohio settle down to docile acceptance of the retail sales tax as a permanent "necessary evil" they should at least understand the gypping they are being given as a result of the collection plan in vogue in this state, under which as much as ONE HUNDRED PER CENT SALES TAX is sometimes collected on a part of their purchases.

This is the case when a purchase amounts to either 11 cents or 71 cents—the additional cent requiring payment of one cent tax, instead of the 3 per cent tax originally intended.

It should also be kept in mind that payment of one cent sales tax on a 10-cent purchase constitutes a 10 per cent tax. While this involves only pennies, and seems to be a small matter, the total of a year's drain on consumers is too great to be treated lightly.

A number of states have eliminated this unreasonable burden on consumers by making use of "tokens," each of which represents a mill, or a tenth of a cent in value as a tax-paying medium. Three of these represent an exact 3 per cent tax on a 10-cent purchase, and if a penny is given to the clerk, tokens representing seven mills are handed back as change. The one-mill tokens are cast in aluminum and there are also 5-mill tokens, cast in copper, to facilitate transactions.

While it was at first assumed that the tokens would be regarded as a nuisance, it is reported in states using this plan that consumers are much better satisfied as a result of being able to pay the exact tax instead of being penalized on small purchases.

It has also become the practice for tokens of various states to be accepted interchangeably in adjoining states.

Hitler's Exclusiveness.

NATIONAL SOCIALISM is such a holy thing," says Adolf Hitler, "that we never wish to force it on foreign people. I hope to God it will remain ours forever."

That would be all right with other people, if Hitler and his co-religionists would live up to his declaration and keep naziism for themselves. It is when they try to force it on other political and religious groups, and persecute people for not agreeing with them, and interfere with other nations' business, that believers in different systems—or in no systems at all—condemn them.

Greta Garbo says she won't marry till the public forgets her, and the public won't forget her till she's married, so fate seems to be stymied.

We supposed all the fellows in Wall Street were supermen, and then along came Whitney to show what innocents they are.

Nature seems to have started in several million years ago to make it difficult for the New Deal.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

ONE of the most illuminating comments on the administration's reciprocity trade program is contained in a pamphlet by Raymond Leslie Buell, head of the Foreign Policy association. The pamphlet is entitled "The Hull Trade Program and the American System."

"Do we give more than we receive?" asks Mr. Buell. No, he answers, we gain more than we give.

As for the most-favored nation treatment, here is what Mr. Buell says:

"A second criticism of the Hull trade program relates to most-favored-nation treatment. According to the Trade Agreements Act, any reduction in duties in an agreement shall be extended automatically to all other foreign countries which do not discriminate against the United States. If the United States lowers the duty on steel in a treaty with Belgium, the reduction is automatically extended to the same kind of steel from all other countries. Critics insist that under this system, the United States gives concessions to 50 nations, while receiving concessions from one nation only in return. Consequently, they argue that the trade agreements program will swamp America with imports and that it is 'selling the country down the river.'

"Charles Evans Hughes, who proclaimed the most-favored-nation policy in 1923 when secretary of state, and Secretary Cordell Hull, who favors the policy today, do not accept such reasoning. Both believe that the United States has far more to gain than to lose from the non-discriminatory principle. For in refraining from erecting discriminating tariffs, the United States is in a position to demand that most-favored-nation treatment be extended to all American exports.

"For example, following the signature of a most-favored-nation agreement with the United States, Belgium made an agreement with France lowering the duty on French automobiles. As a result of our previous most-favored-nation agreement, Belgium automatically extended the reduction to automobiles coming from the United States.

"Had the United States followed the principle of exclusive bargaining, it would not have received the benefit of this treaty. To protect the position of American automobile experts in Belgium, it would have had to carry on negotiations anew. Thus, most-favored-nation treatment protects American export trade."

* * *

MOST-FAVORED-NATION

Mr. Buell adds:

"A further danger in abandoning most-favored-nation treatment is that the opposite principle of bilateral bargaining often leads to efforts to balance exports and imports between two countries. And trade cannot be balanced in this way without reducing the total volume of world trade. For example, the United States sells much more to Britain than it buys; but we buy much more from Brazil than we sell. Brazil, on the other hand, buys more from Britain than it sells. Under the system 'triangular trade,' Britain pays debts to us by the exchange received from Brazil; and we use this exchange to pay what we owe Brazil. In 1928 37 per cent of the total foreign trade of the United States was done on a triangular basis. Now this triangular trade might be destroyed if we abandoned the most-favored-nation principle in favor of bilateral exclusive bargaining.

"But if we extend tariff reductions to every nation in the world, will we not be flooded with imports far exceeding the increase in exports? Figures show that these fears are unfounded.

"Certainly the balance of payments of the United States has greatly improved from the international point of view during the past five years, and the Hull trade program deserves some credit for this development. Meanwhile, the very fact that we continue to export more than we import disproves the contention that the most-favored-nation policy is 'flooding the country' with imports."

* * *

AS TO FARM PRODUCTS

Mr. Buell explains:

"One reason why the most-favored-nation clause has not resulted in larger imports more rapidly is because the state department usually confines its reductions to commodities the supply of which comes principally or exclusively from the second party to a trade agreement.

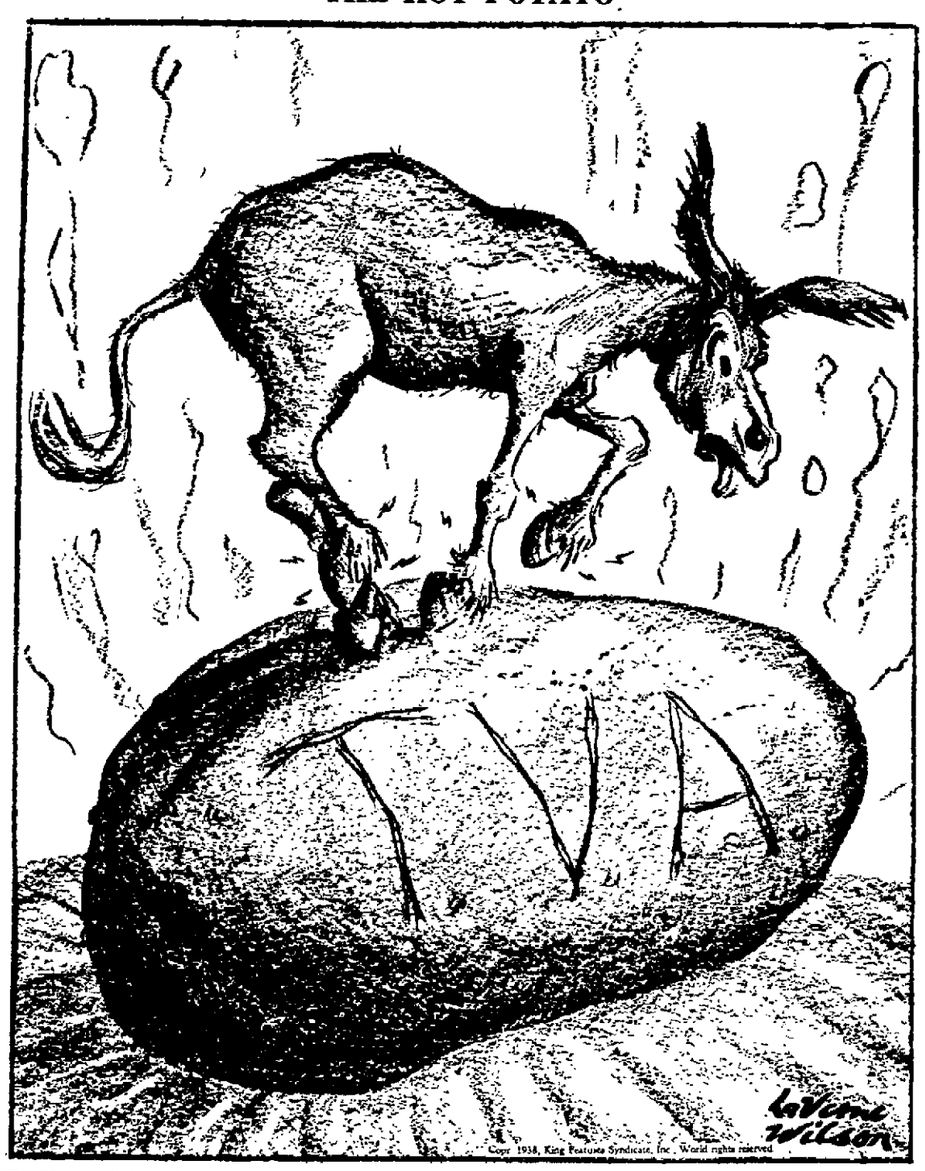
THE HOT POTATO



More Interest In Foreign News

—By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK—The United States is indebted to the dictators and their "isms" for one great boon—they have made this country foreign-news-minded.

Never before in our history—barring the period of the World war—has there been such widespread interest in general foreign affairs as exists today. This transformation has taken place in the brief space of about four years, the period covering most of the major events growing out of the dictatorships.

Those events include the wars, the blood purges, suppressions of religious and political rights, economic upheavals, and the development of the struggle between fascism and democracy.

To put the thing on thumb-nail, America became cosmopolitan when the "isms" dumped a huge section of humanity into the melting-pot with the idea of remaking mankind.

Many of us thought the World war would create in America a lasting interest in foreign news, especially since so many of our boys went overseas. But our interest, as a whole, was not sustained and we slipped back into a fair degree of provincialism.

* * *

TODAY foreign news is being widely published and widely read in most parts of the country. The man in the street wants to know about this foreign attempt to remake the humanity of which he is a part.

Everywhere you go these days you find an avid interest in foreign affairs. It was my privilege to discuss the foreign situation the other day in Columbus with 57 editors of Ohio newspapers which are members of the Associated Press.

We devoted a lot of time to the subject, and the editors put your correspondent through a catechism which convinced him that a good place to learn about foreign matters was right there. Not only are the papers publishing much foreign news, but the editors are thoroughly familiar with the background and are able to help their public in interpretation.

* * *

RECENTLY I spoke on foreign affairs to a group of young ladies at Vassar. The meeting was thrown open to questions, and the inquiries showed that these students not only were reading the worth-while foreign news, but were able to interpret its meaning.

It is not only among the highly educated class that one finds this new interest in other lands. The other day I dropped down on a bench in old Union square beside a couple of young men who obviously were temporarily "on the rocks." Their shoes were cracked and their clothes were shabby.

Were they complaining about their hard luck? They were not. Naturally I couldn't help hearing their conversation, and was intensely interested to discover that they were discussing the Spanish revolution. One of them was taking the lead in explaining the underlying causes of the war.

He wasn't employing correct English, but he knew what he was talking about. There was nothing radical in his exposition, and he wasn't taking sides. He was just speaking unbiased common-sense about a decidedly complicated situation.

Studying the New Diesel Engine.

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—So promising are the power possibilities of a new diesel unit soon to come on the market in quantity production that a government engineer has been asked to study what effect it may have on demand for power from the big dams.

The findings were arresting, but not necessarily revolutionary. The conclusion of the engineer, whose report is kept within strictly limited hands, is that the new unit likely will offer serious competition to the less efficient electric utility companies and will scissor off some of the outlying business of even the best of them.

The engineer computed that the new engine would provide a kilowatt of power for a year of normal use at a cost of about $20. That covers amortized capital cost and operating expense. A kilowatt of installed capacity is about what is required to provide power for one rather large home with the usual domestic equipment—kitchen range, refrigerator, water heater, lights and conveniences.

* * *

Threat to Utilities.

THE engineer went to a recent exhaustive survey by the Federal Power Commission for comparative figures. What he found was that the cost of power the country over had a middle range of from $40 to $75 a kilowatt per year against the $20 for the diesel unit.

Boulder dam, on the other hand, spins out its power at about $11 a kilowatt a year, which can be delivered at Los Angeles for about $16. That puts Boulder dam production out of danger of even the most favorable estimates of the new diesel.

For further comparison, the engineer computed that Washington, D. C., power runs about $44 a kilowatt a year. Tacoma, Wash., with a municipally owned hydro-electric plant, he said, does the same for $20.10, about on a par with the diesel.

The new diesel, a high speed development in comparison with low-speed diesels generally in use in recent years, has certain disadvantages in competition with the power drawn from big public utility plants.

Further, the engineer who made the study was frank to say that he had deliberately taken the best probable production of the diesels against the average of the public utilities and the federal power dams. He did that, he said, so his boss, head of an important government power agency, would know the most serious side of the competition he might expect in expanding service into the countryside about his project.

* * *

SEC Not Excited.

THE engineer pointed out that in order to get a kilowatt of power at $20 a year from the diesel, no cost for a building was counted in. If an isolated farm or small machine shop installed it, probably no housing cost would arise. If a small community decided to use the equipment, cost of housing, plus some management and operation, together with storage space for fuel, would be added.

But even these supplemental costs, he said, would leave it in a sharp competitive position against certain types of business now enjoyed by the public utility companies. He mentioned such things as refrigerating plants, groups of closely neighboring farms, compact suburban developments, and machine shops required now to pay a flat rate for power regardless of the amounts used.

We checked the engineer's views with engineers in the Securities and Exchange Commission who are concerned with public utility prospects. They said the machine provided a definite source of competition but insisted it would be evolutionary in effect, not revolutionary.

Should Politicians Be Trained?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

EVERYTHING'S specialized, these days. Everyone's trained.

Everyone, says Eleanore Kaselitz of Detroit, except those who need training most of all. Namely, the Gang who run the Game—OUR AMERICAN POLITICIANS.

Eleanore Kaselitz is one of those Young Americans who are raising such ruckus in our column on Monday. Time was—and not long since—when Politics meant less than nothing to any American youngster. But the Rising Generation has been wised up. Today Junior and Sister realize, all too clearly, the burden we've prepared for them to carry . . . the responsibility we've created for them to face. And they're wondering—plenty!

Shall they accept these burdens and responsibilities unquestioningly—like dumb beasts led to the slaughter? Or shall they demand Intelligent Leadership before they accept Unpleasant Consequences! In short, can Politicians continue to be dizzy dumb-bells . . . or must they be Enlightened Citizens, with at least as much training as we now demand from plumbers and engineers?

Here's the letter which started it all—and which I heartily recommend as subject for this evening's family council.

"Dear Elsie Robinson—

"I am 28 years of age, hold a clerical job with a local trucking company and earn $22.50 a week. Before I could apply for this job I had to go to a business college for over two years.

"One of my boy friends is a tool engineer and had to go to college for four years before he even was given a chance to apply for a job as draftsman. My dentist had to spend five years in a university before he was allowed to pull one of my teeth. My lawyer tells me it took him four years in law school and lots of work for a bar examination before he could take my case. My teacher in business college had to study years for a teacher's certificate.

"These people I mentioned earn from about $2,000 to $4,000 a year, to which they are welcome—after spending years in schools and hundreds of dollars for tuition and books.

"But there is another class of people—and these the most powerful in the land—who do not need to take any course of study or present any diploma before THEY are allowed to practice. I REFER TO OUR POLITICIANS.

"I know of a few real instances. One was originally a newspaper boy . . . another a shoe clerk . . . another a factory worker. Today, these men hold jobs which bring them from $2,500 to $6,000 a year . . . drive expensive cars, build beautiful homes filled with the finest furniture. But did they get these luxuries through their trained service? They did not. They got them by ordinary scheming and graft . . . BY DOING FAVORS FOR SOME FELLOW HIGHER UP.

"We working young people of today are not as ignorant and trusting as our fathers and mothers were at our age. WE KNOW THAT THERE IS PRACTICALLY NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE AVERAGE POLITICIAN AND THE AVERAGE GANGSTER . . . THEY BOTH WORK BY THE SAME METHODS.

"Not one out of fifty has any special training—any real knowledge of governmental procedure. They have no recommendations behind them . . . no guarantees of their honesty, such as a common clerk would have to give. Yet today they are sitting in power over us all—and getting a 'cut' on all our taxes.

"I ask you, Miss Robinson, is this fair? Should we Americans allow ourselves to be governed by untrained climbers who have less recommendation than we would demand of the plumber who fixes a broken faucet? NO WONDER WE ARE IN THE JAM WE ARE IN TODAY!"

Eleanore Kaselitz,
4132 Bellevue,
Detroit, Mich.

There's a question which challenges every American voter . . . and which should make most of us feel like dented dimes! We wheeze and whine, bleat and bellow about political flim-flam. Yet we all know that, as a statesman, the average politician is a good dishwasher.

So what? Are we going to do something about it? Or just shuffle along?

Man About Manhattan.

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—On the 16th floor of the Chanin building, in East 42nd street, is a great, oblong oak-paneled room with red damask curtains and a desk that sits, throne-like at the far end, facing the entrance.

Behind this sits a grizzled veteran of the economic and industrial wars, old foe of Anthony Comstock, a believer in fresh air and exercise, a wiry-haired man with erect shoulders, of medium size, and sharp, penetrating eyes.

When you enter this room, treading on soft carpets, and stand before this man you have gained the inner-sanctum, the holy-of-holies of one of the nation's great magazine empires. For this is the throne-room of Macfadden publications, and this is the chief himself, Bernarr Macfadden, who controls 18 magazines, owns a military school in Tennessee, a boarding school in New York, plus health resorts and summer camps.

* * *

HE SAYS: "These papers here—I'm writing a radio speech to be delivered in California when I go out to present Freddie Bartholomew with the medal one of my magazines has awarded him for his fine work."

Rain is whipping sullenly against the panes.

He says: "In three hours I shall be getting out of this, heading into the sunshine. I'm going to Florida before I depart for Los Angeles. On the way back I shall go by Lebanon, Tenn., to see my military school, and then I'll probably return here by way of Chicago."

Most of Mr. Macfadden's magazines are printed in Chicago. The others come off presses which are located in New Jersey. More than 19,000,000 copies of magazines a month go out bearing his name.

He says: "We haven't felt the recession much. Liberty has gained almost a quarter of a million new readers. Oh, we've felt it some, but not much."

He says: "No, I'm not in politics any more. Some of my friends wanted me to see what I could do about the presidential nomination last election, but, well, I don't think I shall ever take any active part in politics."

He says: "All writers get the acid test with us. When manuscripts are read the readers don't know who the authors are. Their names are removed from the manuscripts. Not long ago we returned a story by a famous writer, and he was quite annoyed. But we couldn't help that. You see, the old and the new, the fat and the lean, get the same treatment here."

* * *

HIS net income for 1928 has been published as $1,839,848.79. He has been sued for vast sums by theatrical producers and professional purists, notably the late Anthony Comstock, who proved a persistent gadfly to Mcfadden in his early days. He preaches a doctrine of health through eating wholesome foods and bodily exercise. Once he astounded motorists and pedestrians by walking barefooted 27 miles to his office.

Few men have been criticized so bitterly and honored as signally as Macfadden. At 70 he remains the driving force behind a $15,000,000 enterprise. Not bad for a guy who started as an orphan on a farm in Missouri.

Timely Editorial

Going To Bed.

Going to bed is a very simple matter. It is accomplished by hundreds of thousands of persons every night.

It consists merely in emptying the ash trays into the fireplace, letting the dogs out, calling the dogs in, fixing meat poison and putting it out for the rats, setting a couple of mouse traps, spraying the pantry against cockroaches.

Looking to see if the ice box doors are firmly closed, shaking down the furnace and putting on more coal, taking out a couple of scuttlesful of ashes, getting a drink of water, eating an apple or a bit of cheese, putting down accounts, seeing that the outer door to the cellar is locked, seeing that the inner door to the cellar is locked, inspecting for dripping spigots.

Seeing that the door from the cellar to the kitchen is locked, seeing that the kitchen door and two windows are locked, putting the lights out in the kitchen, seeing that the four windows in the dining room are locked, putting out the lights in the dining room, seeing that the front door and the five windows in the hall and living room are locked.

Putting out the lights on the front porch, taking a smoke, looking to see if the clock on the thermostat is running, putting out the five lights in the living room.

Seeing that the letters to be taken to town in the morning are where you will notice them, closing the front closet door, putting out the lights in the hall, kissing the children goodnight, winding and setting the alarm clock, winding the watch, removing bed spread and putting down puff on the bed, lowering shades on nine windows and closing the shutters on three.

Getting undressed, cleaning teeth, washing face and hands, rubbing pomade into the hair, taking nose drops for cold, rubbing lotion on chapped hands, laying out clean clothes for the morning, putting out bathroom light, putting out dressing room light, opening bedroom windows, turning out bedroom light and jumping into bed.

With a little practice, anybody should be able to do it all in from an hour to an hour and a half—Christopher Billopp, in The Baltimore Evening Sun.

CHAPTER VI

"She has a very amiable disposition," said Gay

Algy was perfectly right Brewster was a most efficient bore. He wanted to talk about Sylvia went on talking about Sylvia.

"The first time I met her was not really a meeting at all She was walking with Mrs Wessex-Gardner, and I bowed—to Mrs Wessex-Gardner And the second time she was also walking in the park—"

"With Mrs Wessex-Gardner?"

"No, she was olone so of course I couldn't bow. But tonight Mrs Wessex-Gardner very kindly asked me to join her party, and I was introduced to her. As you are her cousin, perhaps you will tell me a little more about her. Is she a widow?"

"Certainly not She's only been married for a year"

"And her husband?"

"He is Sir Francis Colesborough, because his father made a lot of money in—well, I think it was timber—and gave away parks, and playgrounds, and things So they made him a baronet He bought a most lovely old place called Cole Lester. I believe he bought it because of the name being like his own, and of course it belongs to Francis now."

"I see," said Cyril. "And do they live there a good deal?"

"I don't think so Sylvia likes London She was brought up in the country, you know, so she's had enough of it Francis seems to go away a lot on business"

"Ah, yes—I suppose he would." He went on talking about Sylvia.

* * *

And when Algy came back he did nothing but talk about Sylvia too. Even in the taxi going home he was still saying how lovely she was Gay caught a glimpse of herself in the glass at the side of the taxi, and saw a plain little Gay with no color at all and the sparkle gone from her eyes. They were very nearly home, and she was glad.

She turned, and saw Algy beside her like a shadow. They were in Hunt street again and it was fast asleep, not a light in any one of the crowded houses. Miss Hardwicke's was No 36.

Algy came up the steps with Gay He said, "I'll walk home. I'm short of fresh air and exercise"

Gay said nothing. She was looking in her bag for the latch-key. When she found it she didn't put it in the lock. They just stood there. The hooded porch was over them, and the street was dark. There was no sound at all—no sound Neither of them moved Neither of them spoke for a long time. Then Gay lifted the key and put it into the lock, and as she did that, Algy's hand came past her shoulder and closed down over her head and over the key, and Gay's hand shook Algy said "Gay—" in an old muffled voice, and Gay turned the key, pushed the door open, and ran in. She stood just inside with the hall light shining behind her, and said in a bright, clear voice, "Night, Algy Thanks ever so much," and sent the door to with a bang that brought Aunt Agatha out in dressing-gown and cap to enquire what sort of hour of the night Gay thought it was Gay went up to her room and shut the door with a sense of escape She was rather out of breath, and her cheeks were hot, but her hands were cold.

She was angrier with herself than she had ever been before in all her life What did she think she was doing, turning hot and cold and going all dithery inside just because Algy Somers had grabbed her hand like that? Only he hadn't grabbed it. His hand had come down upon hers and stayed there. Gay spoke very fiercely to herself. "You just get into bed as quick as you can. And don't you dare think about Algy again tonight"

* * *

Algy Somers walked home throuh a number of dark, quiet streets. His footsteps had only their own echo for company, and as he walked he was wondering what had happened to him He hadn't known that he was going to take Gay's hand like that. Something had come up between them as they stood together in the dark porch, and before he knew what he was going to do his hand closed on hers. The feel of that little hand, and the way it shook under his, was tingling in him still What he ought to be feeling was relief, because if Gay hadn't pulled away like that and run into the house, there was really no saying what he might have said or done. He might have said anything, he might have committed himself quite hopelessly. And instead of being grateful for a most providential interruption he was raging because Gay had run away from him. And why? That was what he wanted to know Why had her hand been all shaky under his, and why had she run away? Was she angry with him, or was she afraid or . . . . ?

It was some time after this that he came to with a start; he hadn't the very faintest idea where he was It took him quite a long time to get home.

Sylvia Colesborough heard the wall-clock in her sitting-room strike three as she went up the stair. As she undressed she moved to and fro with her slow, invariable grace. Sylvia never hurried She put on a white embroidered chiffon nightdress and sat down on the edge of her wide, low bed to take off her slippers. As the second slipper dropper, the telephone bell rang sharply beside her

She got into bed, and when the bell rang a second time she took up the receiver. It was silly of her heart to beat so fast, because nobody in the world would ring her up at this hour except Francis—nobody in the whole world. But Francis might — Francis sometimes did when he was away like this

A man's voice said, "Hullo!" It sounded a long way off. Francis was a long way off. He was somewhere abroad, she wasn't quite sure where Francis very seldom told her where he went to on business journeys.

The faraway voice said "Hullo!" again.

Sylvia said, "Who's there?" and the voice said, "Mr Zero"

The receiver in Sylvia's hand shook.

"I can't talk to you—I really can't. Please, please go away."

Mr. Zero laughed. He had an odd, cold laugh which frightened Sylvia extremely.

"Neither of us is going away," he said, "until we've got our little bit of business fixed up. I'm a martyr to business, and if you don't want to be a martyr too, and a slaughtered martyr at that, you'll stay just where you are and listen to me until I say you can hang up."

Sylvia was puzzled to the point of forgetting to be frightened. In a tone of pure bewilderment she said, "I don't know what you mean."

Mr. Zero laughed again.

"Dear me—I was forgetting that I must use words of one syllable! Very, very stupid of me. Please accept my apologies. And now to business. If you ring off before I've finished with you, I will write and tell your husband about the paper you took last week. Is that quite clear?"

"No!" said Sylvia with a gasp. "Oh, no—you wouldn't! I mean you won't!"

"Not if you do as you're told. And the first thing is, you are not to hang up until I say you can."

Sylvia felt a slight relief. If that was all, she could do that. She pulled up a pale blue sheet and a pale green blanket and settled herself against the pillows that matched them.

Mr. Zero was speaking, still in that faraway voice.

"I will put everything very simply. As far as possible there shall be only words of one syllable. Now listen to me! Is your husband away?"

"Oh, yes"

"When does he come back?"

"Tomorrow—at least I think so"

"He takes his keys with him of course?"

"Oh, yes"

"Where does he keep them when he is at home? No, I can tell you that—he has them on a chain in his trouser pocket and changes them over when he changes his clothes A very careful person. What I don't know, and what I want you to tell me is what he does with them at night. Does he leave them on his dressing table?"

* * *

Sylvia had almost stopped being frightened. This was quite easy to answer.

"Only when he goes to his bath," she said.

"And the bathroom opens out of his dressing-room, doesn't it? Could you do anything about the keys then?"

"Oh, no—his man is there?"

"Always?'

"Oh, yes, always."

"Are you telling the truth?" said Mr. Zero

Sylvia was very much affronted. She drew herself up against her pillows and said. "I always tell the truth."

Mr. Zero laughed. She hated that horrid laugh.

"Always?"

"Except when I can't"

"I see And you're sure this isn't one of those times?"

He had her puzzled again.

"I don't know what you mean."

"No—my fault—sorry. Back to the infant class again. Your husband's man stays in the dressing-room all the time?"

"Oh yes"

"Well, what happens at night? What does he do with the keys then?"

"He puts them under his pillow."

Mr. Zero said briskly. "And is he a sound sleeper?"

"Oh, yes, very."

"Then it is all quite easy. You wait till he is asleep, you take the keys from under his pillow, and you come downstairs and open the left-hand dining-room window—the one on your own left as you come into the room. You will give me the keys out of the window."

"Oh, no—I couldn't!"

"You will give me those keys, and you will wait till I give them back to you. I will be only a few minutes. Then I will give them to you again, and you will put them back under your husband's pillow. It is all very simple. I will be waiting by the dining-room window from one to two tomorrow night, and you will bring me the keys then."

"I don't think I can," said Sylvia in a weak and yielding voice.

* * *

Mr Montague Lushington looked up at the sound of the opening door He was sitting at a writing-table in the study of his own house. He was rather a handsome man with a noticeable crop of grey hair, and hazel eyes which could be shrewd, dreamy, or restless They were restless now. He drummed with his fingers on the arm of his chair and said, "Come in and shut the door, Algy."

Algy Somers wondered what he had done. There had been signs of dirty weather all the week, but this had the appearance of a gale warning to all coasts.

"Sit down," said Mr Lushington.

Algy began to wonder if he was going to get the sack. Only if Monty was going to sack him, would he ask him to sit down?

'Yes, sir?" Algy said.

Mr. Lushington leaned back. The movement was an impatient one.

"What sort of memory have you, Algy."

Dismay invaded Algy's mind. What had he forgotten? He said modestly, "Oh, I don't know—pretty fair as a rule. I hope I haven't been forgetting anything, sir"

Mr Lushington frowned "That remains to be seen I want you to cast your mind back to last Saturday."

Algy's mind went back to a very pleasant evening spent with Gay Hardwicke. He had no difficulty in recalling the agreeable details, but it did not seem at all likely that they would interest Monty.

"Saturday, sir?" he said.

"Last Saturday I went away for the week-end. I went down to Wellings to stay with the Wessex-Gardners, and just before I started a special messenger turned up with a memorandum which I had asked for from the Intelligence. Now take over and tell me exactly what happened. Who was the messenger?"

"Mr Carstairs saw him, sir."

"I want you to go over the whole thing—I want every detail."

"Mr. Carstairs and I were in here. Mr. Carstairs had just come down from seeing you Parkinson came in and said there was a messenger, and Carstairs — Mr. Carstairs—went to the door and took the letter. He was going up with it, but the telephone bell rang, and it was some one for him, so he told me to take the letter."

Mr Lushington drummed with his fingers.

"One moment, one moment. Were you and Carstairs alone? Where was Brewster?"

"Oh he was somewhere around,"

"Can't you be accurate? What on earth do you mean by somewhere around?"

"Well, he was in the offing, don't you know, sir? Nose to the grindstone and all that sort of thing"

"You mean he was in this room?"

"Oh yes—definitely"

"But he didn't handle the letter?"

"Oh, no, sir"

"Did you see Carstairs take the letter from the messenger?"

Algy considered for a moment.

"Well, I heard him say, 'Mr. Lushington is upstairs I will take it up to him.' And I heard the man say, 'thank you sir.' And then Mr. Carstairs came back into the room with the envelope in his hand, and the telephone bell rang, and he told me to take it up to you, and I did."

"No one else touched it?"

"No one."

"And you came straight up with it? It wasn't out of your hand at all?"

"Oh, no, sir."

Montague Lushington said, "Very well then—go on."

Algy restrained an expression of surprise.

"But you know all the rest, sir. You were in your dressing-room, and I put the envelope down on the table."

Mr. Lushington nodded "Go on. I have my own recollection of what happened, but I want yours—every detail, please."

"You were packing your suit-case, sir. It was on the bed, and so was your despatch-box. They were both open. You put a pair of socks into the suit-case, and then you took up the envelope and said, "What's this?' And I said, 'Just come 'round by messenger from the Intelligence. Mr. Carstairs told me to bring it up.' And you said, 'Yes, yes—I asked them to let me have it,' and you picked it up, and put it in on the top of your despatch-box, and locked the case, and put the keys back in your pocket. And you said that was all, and I cleared out."

"You saw me put the envelope in my despatch-case and lock it away?"

"Yes, sir."

There was a silence. Montagu Lushington looked long and shrewdly at his young cousin. In the end he said, "Did you notice how the letter was addressed?"

What in the name of fortune did this mean? Algy tried to keep surprise out of his voice as he said, "No—I didn't look at it, I'm afraid. Carstairs—Mr. Carstairs — gave it to me. He said it was the sabotage memorandum you had asked for from the Intelligence, and told me to take it up to you. I never thought of looking at it."

Mr Lushington said, "I see. You didn't notice the envelope at all? Now what I want you to tell me is this. You put the envelope down on the table, and I picked it up and put it away in my despatch case. Think before you speak, please. Did you see me look at it or read the address.

"I don't think I did."

"You don't think—that's not good enough. Can't you be more exact than that?"

"I'm afraid I can't, sir. I wasn't taking very much notice. You see, I'd given you the envelope, so I wasn't thinking about it any more." He paused, and then went on again. "I think you just picked it up and put it into your despatch box. I don't think you looked at it."

Mr. Lushington pushed back his chair.

"No doubt you are wondering what this is all about."

'It's not my business to wonder, is it, sir?"

Mr. Lushington frowned. "It may be. I am going to talk to you in confidence, Algy. You are a member of my family as well as a member of my staff, and I wish to make it quite clear that what I am saying is not to go any further. To begin with, the papers which you brought me have disappeared. I went down to the Wessex-Gardners, as you know, and I did not open my despatch case until about midnight, when I went up to my room for the night. When I did open it, there was a plain manila envelope right on top of the other papers. It bore no address, and there was a sheet of blank foolscap inside. That is why I asked whether you had noticed the address on the envelope you brought me."

"But, sir—"

HITS PROCESSED WHISKY IN OHIO

Liquor Board Member Asserts State Should Get Most For Money Spent.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Determined opposition on the part of an Ohio liquor board member to the first instance of approved sale by state liquor stores of "processed" whisky is spread on the board's books.

Mrs. Edith McClure Patterson, only woman on the board, said that one of the 30 new brands approved by the board was of the "percolated or processed" type of whisky, the aging of which was uncertain because of storage in "used cooperage."

She said it was approved over her objections that the use of old barrels for storing whisky "may age the liquor only a few days or weeks" regardless of the length of time it remains in the casks.

"Although there is a demand at present for cheap liquor because of reduced incomes, I feel that it is only right to see that Ohioans get the best product that can be bought for the money," she said.

Approval of the new brands brought to 347 the number to be handled by state stores.

U. S. S. Cyclops, Vanished Vessel, Lost For 20 Years

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The greatest mystery in the history of American shipping, the disappearance of the 19,360-ton navy fuel vessel Cyclops with 309 men aboard, remains as far from a solution today as it did 20 years ago.

The Cyclops left Barbadoes on March 4, 1918, with a load of coal for Baltimore. It never was heard from again.

It is known that no enemy submarines were operating in the western Atlantic at that time and inquiries in Europe proved to the navy's satisfaction that the ship had not fallen prey to a German U-boat or mine.

The ship was commanded by Lieut.-Commander George W. Worley. It carried 21 officers. One of the passengers was the U. S. consul to Rio de Janeiro.

IRVING BERLIN TO RETURN TO BROADWAY TO WORK ON MUSICAL

By MILTON HARKER
(By International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD — Irving Berlin will return to Broadway next month to begin work on a new musical to be produced in the autumn by Sam Harris.

Berlin revealed his plans to this correspondent as production neared completion on his "Alexander's Ragtime Band" at 20th Century-Fox.

"I leave for New York as soon as the picture is previewed, which should be right after May 1," Berlin said. "I shall return here by the first of the year, maybe, to do another show for Daryll Zanuck."

Never has a picture been done in Hollywood with so many musical numbers. There are 34, of which 32 are old, but with modern arrangements. There will be two new Berlin numbers, "Now It Can Be Told" and "My Walking Stick."

"I think audiences will find this pictufre a new form in which to do a dramatic story with that many song intervals," Berlin said. "That's because the songs become an integral part of the story."

Berlin doesn't think there's anything new in music.

Whether it's called ragtime, jazz, swing or anything else, it's all fundamentally the same," he said.

Making a musical scene in the movies is a complicated business, but it assures perfection.

For Berlin's picture a replica has been built of Carnegie Hall in New York, where the first swing band concert is supposedly being held.

Before the scene is shot, the musical number is made in an enclosed recording room. The orchestra is directed by Alfred Newman, this town's musical genius who has conducted in Hollywood bowl. Zanuck borrowed him for the picture from Sam Goldwyn.

When the camera grinds, an oversized phonograph plays the music. The orchestra, now led by Tyrone Power, merely goes through soundless motions which later will be syncronized with the sound track

Power, who knows nothing of music, keeps one eye on Emil Newman, Alfred's brother, who's offstage. Power just follows Emil's motions of conducting. Even the musicians who see the picture later will swear Power is one of them and a good one.

That's the way movies are made.

State Men Raid 145 Places Here In Last 2 Years

State liquor inspectors and agents made 145 raids and arrested 70 persons in Richland county during the past two years, while 57 convictions for illegal sale or possession were obtained, Alfred Humphrey, chief of the enforcement division, reported today.

Fines assessed against the 57 violators totaled $12,800. Enforcement officers destroyed eight stills and confiscated 4,100 gallons of mash and 540 gallons of whisky. The stills ranged in size from 20 gallons to 500 gallons, Humphrey's report said.

Records for the state showed that the Ohio liquor board heard 724 cases, revoked 359 permits and ordered 326 suspensions for permit holders last year as compared with 429 cases heard, 241 revocations and 113 suspensions in 1936.

Judge J. W. Miller, director of the Ohio department of liquor control, asserted that "careful and timely inspection of permit holders and constant vigil against illicit liquor traffic by the enforcement division has largely eliminated the undesirable dealer in legal intoxicants and curbed bootlegging definitely."

GIRL STUDENTS WORK WAY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—A Saturday night date means nothing to a Hunter college girl, at least not if she thinks she can earn money by watching the neighbor's baby. More than half of the students work and go to school, too.

GOVERNOR SAYS CITIES SHOULD TACKLE RELIEF

Urges Them to Draft Program In Talk to 1,000 Here at 9-County Rally.

plan, and now they are asking for a special session to put the very same plan into operation" he declared.

"We have never evaded our responsibility and do not propose to do so now, but there is some grim satisfaction in knowing that they (the cities) are asking for the same thing we tried to give them."

In an eloquent plea for "an opportunity to go on for two more years to carry forward a great program," the governor claimed credit for setting up the state school foundation program, getting the state out of debt, increasing old age pensions and making the state liquor monopoly system pay dividends.

Davey arrived in Mansfield at 5:15 p. m. yesterday from Youngstown, accompanied by three state highway patrolmen, Maj. R. A. Spray, his aid; his publicity manager and a group of state officials.

At the high school, Gov. Davey spoke in a setting of ferns, lilies and campaign placards. Back of him were more than 50 state officials, county executive chairman, office holders and Democratic leaders from the nine counties in northcentral Ohio.

The governor praised Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent of the Mansfield reformatory, as "a man who made a career of making things better for unfortunates" and described E. B. Kallmerten, chairman of the Richland County Democratic executive committee, who invited him here, as "one of the ablest county chairmen in the state."

Praises Foundation Set-up.

Asserting that three Democratic governors—Judson Harmon, James M. Cox and himself—have done most for the state's educational system, Gov. Davey said, "we gave the foundation law to Ohio—the greatest thing that has happened in the history of education in this state."

Without referring to Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, his opponent in the Democratic primary, or John W. Bricker, the Republican candidate for governor, Davey praised his two administrations as "progressive and humanitarian" and added that "we have tried not to do anything crazy or impossible, and have kept our feet on the ground."

His interest in humanity, he said, accounted for his desire to be governor, and the same interest, he continued, had resulted in more progress toward improvement of the state institutions than has been made in any state administration in 25 years.

"Our state institutions were a crying shame and a relic of barbarism," he said, "with many employes getting only $50 to $60 a month. This administration has given some thought to the people who operate these institutions."

Refers to Liquor Monopoly.

His administration the governor said has been responsible for putting the state's liquor monopoly system on a paying basis and "damming the sale of the bootleggers."

"I have wished a thousand times we weren't in the liquor business," Davey asserted, "but since I inherited the monopoly system, I reorganized it as fast as possible, and now Ohio is making more money from liquor sales than any other state with the same type of system."

Defending his action in sending national guardsmen into the Youngstown steel strike area last summer, the governor said, Ohio took a stand for law and order, blazing a trail for a troubled land."

Contending that he has always been a friend of labor, he added that, "In all the long struggle labor has carried on, the only worthwhile achievement has come under the law. Troops were sent to Youngstown last June to maintain the majesty of the law.
